Pearson Strikes Out 9
And Yields Only
5 Hits
GORDON HOMERS
Bryant Driven From Mound in Third
Game of Series

Yankee Stadium, New York —(AP)—Monte Pearson struck out nine batters and yielded only five hits as he pitched the champion Yankees to a 5 to 2 victory over the Chicago Cubs in the third game of the world series here today. Joe Gordon, rookie second baseman, knocked across three runs with single and a homerun as the Yanks drove Clay Bryant from the mound and gained their third straight triumph.

The day, in contrast to Cub hopes of getting back into the big baseball show, was bright and sunny, though chilly. A record world series throng of 70,000 was expected to watch the pitching duel between Claiborne Henry Bryant and Marcellus Monte Pearson, Yankee right-hander from Oakland, Calif., a hot and cold dinger who hurled a no-hitter against Cleveland last August. A lively breeze stroked across the field from left to right, affording right-handed hitters their best chance to hit homers since the series opened at Wrigley field Wednesday. The stadium, heavily-festooned with red, white and blue bunting, presented a beautiful sight. Draped over each club's dugout was a wide strip of bunting. From the center-field flagpole flew a large American flag and the red, white and blue Yankee world championship banner.

There was one sad note—the absence of Colonel Jake Ruppert, Yankee club-owner. The aged colonel, victim of pleurisy, never missed watching his boys in world series warfare until this year. He first was advised he could watch the game here if he didn't go to Chicago, but his physicians thought it over and told him he couldn't even come out today. So he listened to the radio account. Gabby Hartnett, fighting to break the Yankee power that seems headed for victory, switched his outfield lineup for the third straight game. He benched the slower fielding Frank Demaree, put Phil Cavarretta back in right field, the position he played in the first game, and kept Joe Marty in center and Carl Reynolds in left. Marty took over the cleanup batting position because of his ability to hit a longer ball than the others.

First Inning
Cubs—Hack walked. Herman also walked on five pitched balls. The crowd let out a yell. Pearson was having trouble cutting the corners. The Yankee infield played in close as Cavarretta came to bat. He sent a high fly to DiMaggio in short right-center, swinging at a high pitch. Marty singled to deep short, Crosetti stopping the ball but being unable to make a play, and the bases were filled. The crowd was whooping it up as the Yankees appeared in trouble. They howled as Pearson threw a high ball to Reynolds which almost got away from Dickie Reynolds then fanned on a two-and-two pitch. Gabby Hartnett, playing with an injured hand, was given a round of "Come on, Gabby" from the stands as he came to the plate. Hartnett struck out, swinging at a third strike that broke inches wide of the plate. No runs, one hit, no errors, three left.

Second Inning
Cubs—Cub fans were sprinkled liberally throughout the stands and cheered each batter as he came to the plate. Collins fanned on a high outside pitch and a howl went up. Pearson, having worked his way out of a bad hole in the first inning, was pitching much easier in this frame. Jurgens worked the count to two and two, then struck out. He was Pearson's fourth straight strike.

Third Inning
Cubs—Cub fans were sprinkled liberally throughout the stands and cheered each batter as he came to the plate. Collins fanned on a high outside pitch and a howl went up. # Chapple Back In Fight for Senate Seat

Believe Wiley Will be Chief Loser From Independent Candidacy

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison — The contest among the three major parties of Wisconsin for the United States senatorship took on an entirely new aspect today with the announcement that John B. Chapple, insurgent Ashland Republican, will be a candidate as a Republican in the independent column in the November election.

Chapple lost the nomination to Alexander Wiley of Chippewa Falls, in the primary election in which he showed surprising strength in view of the fact that he made only one speech and spent little time campaigning. His considerable vote was attributed to Townsend support, won when he gave a quasi-endorsement to the Townsend pension proposal in a radio speech a few hours before the primary election.

Filed Friday
Chapple's nomination papers as an independent candidate were filed late Friday afternoon by George Quinn, Milwaukee Townsend leader, who had announced this week that he would draft Chapple for the Ashland editor had denounced the Republican platform for its vague old age pension plank.

Quinn reported that he has a statement from Chapple indicating that he will make the race, and George Brown, supervisor of elections in the secretary of state's office said that Chapple had filed the declaration of intention which is required of all candidates.

In Chapple's candidacy political observers could see significant results in the senatorial situation. With a powerful Townsend movement already having shown its hand in the primary returns and a considerable support built up in previous campaigns for governor and senator, Chapple will drive heavily into the Wiley vote, thereby increasing the chances for the Progressive nominee, Herman L. Ekern, it is believed.

Help For Ekern
Most students of state politics now consider the senatorial contest to be between Wiley and Ekern. Ekern carries some support.

Congress Plans to Consider Variety Of Pension Plans

Doughton Says Committee
Will Study Whole
Field of Security

Washington —(AP)—Representative Doughton (D-N. C.) gave assurance today that a wide variety of pension plans, including one for $200-a-month payments, would get congressional attention next session.

He said the house ways and means committee, of which he is chairman, would begin exploring the whole field of social security legislation shortly after congress meets in January.

Advocates of the Townsend and so-called general welfare plans will have an opportunity to be heard fully, along with other persons proposing changes in the social security act, he said.

Several score congressmen have asked for hearings on the "general welfare act," which embraces the Townsend plan in most details. The bill contemplates payment of not to exceed $200 a month to persons over 60. A 2 per cent transactions tax would finance the arrangement. Recipients of the payments would have to spend their money the same month they received it.

Doughton was not prepared to say in what form the administration might propose amendments to present social security legislation. The of getting back into the big base-line of President Roosevelt, has been exploring several possibilities for altering the law.

About 300 Cases Await
High Court's Decision

Washington —(AP)—The supreme court completed today its examination of approximately 300 cases filed during the summer. It will announce Monday which ones will be reviewed.

Controversies before the justices either today or during conferences earlier in the week included:

1. Thomas J. Mooney's effort to obtain release from San Quentin penitentiary. He is serving a life sentence for complicity in the 1916 Preparedness day parade bombing in San Francisco.
2. The Ford Motor company's contention that the national labor relations board should not be permitted to withdraw from a circuit court of appeals litigation involving an order to reinstate 29 employees at Michigan plants.
3. A claim by the labor board that workmen retain their status as employees under the national labor relations act even though they violated a contract not to strike. The Columbian Enameling and Stamping company of Terre Haute, Ind., is involved directly.

Mildred Zuleger, 6, Town
Of Lessor, Plunges
From 30-Foot Silo
SKULL FRACTURED

John Hintzke, 63, New London, Found Dead
Under His Automobile

Unusual accidents yesterday and today claimed the lives of John Hintzke, 63, New London, and Mildred Zuleger, 6-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Zuleger, town of Lessor, Shawano county.

The child died about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon after fall from the ladder of a silo.

The small girl climbed up a silo on the Zuleger farm Friday noon and plunged 30 feet to the concrete barn floor. She was taken to a physician and was being removed to a hospital later in the afternoon when she died of a fractured skull.

The Zuleger residence is located about 12 miles north of Black Creek.

Hintzke, who lived at 116 Shawano street, New London, died sometime between 5:30 and 11 o'clock this morning when his car, under which he was working, fell on him and crushed his chest. The machine was supported on blocks and apparently had rolled off, New London police reported.

Hintzke was lying on his shoulder pinned beneath the front axle of the car when he was found by a group of boys playing near the garage. The boys reported the accident to police.

Born at Maple Creek
He was born Feb. 5, 1875, in the town of Maple Creek, had lived in Milwaukee for a period of 15 years and resided at New London for the last 8 years. He was a member of the Catholic Order of Foresters.

Survivors are his mother, Mrs. Anna Guyette, New London; a daughter, Mrs. Fred Tress, Milwaukee; three brothers, David and Theodore Hintzke, New London, Bernard Hintzke, Salda, Colo.; two sisters, Mrs. Herman Dethart, Grand Rapids, Mich., and Mrs. Margaret Barone, Denver, Colo.; and two grandchildren.

Surviving the child are the parents; one sister, Goldie, at home; a twin brother, Marvin; three grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William Zuleger, Lessor; Charles Dietrich, Nichols.

The body will be removed from the Burdick funeral home at Black Creek Sunday to the Zuleger residence where funeral services will be conducted at 1:30 Monday afternoon and at 2 o'clock at Emmanuel Lutheran church in the town of Cicero by the Rev. A. Quandt. Burial will be in the parish cemetery.

Release 14 in Exchange

Italian Aviators

Hendaye, France (at the Spanish Frontier) —(AP)—Fourteen American prisoners of the Spanish insurgents were released at the border town of Irun at noon today and crossed the international bridge into France.

They were released in exchange for the release by the Spanish government of an equal number of Italian aviators captured during the civil war.

The exchange was arranged by United States Ambassador Claude G. Bowers.

As soon as the Americans crossed the border they asked for American cigarettes and wanted to know how the World series had come out so far.

Rome —(AP)—Italy's international relations were irritated today by American and Vatican concern over new anti-Semitic regulations laid down by the fascist grand council.

The United States embassy awaited a reply to a note handed Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano by Ambassador William Phillips asking whether American Jews are to be given the same consideration Italians get in America.

The note was understood to point out that Italians in the United States are not discriminated against for reasons of race or religion.

About 200 American Jews are threatened with expulsion from Italy under the council's regulations affecting foreign Jews.

The Vatican was concerned over fascism's ban on marriages between Italians and persons of "non-Aryan or alien races." Approval was withheld until Vatican authorities saw how the ban would work.

Under the 1929 concordat the Italian government pledged itself to recognize as legal the sacrament of marriage performed according to canon law.

The fascist council early today decreed abolition of the Italian chamber of deputies and establishment of a new chamber of fates and guilds to take its place. This step long had been promised by Premier Mussolini.

The chamber of deputies, already shorn of virtually all power, will cease to exist at the end of its present session. Henceforth, legislation will be enacted by the senate and a new lower house composed

Benes Will Return To Professorship
At Prague, Report

Prague —(AP)—Associates of Eduard Benes, who resigned Wednesday as president of Czechoslovakia, said today he would return to the professorship of sociology at Charles university in Prague, in the near future. The former president is now at his home near Prague.

(Benes was a professor at Prague when the World war broke out. He quit his teaching to agitate for Czech independence and to devote his time to guiding the newly-created republic.)

Chicago —(AP)—The University of Chicago announced today it had invited former President Eduard Benes of Czechoslovakia to become a visiting member of its faculty, to lecture on democratic institutions, "and particularly the implications to American democracy of developments in Europe."

President Robert M. Hutchins of the university recalled that Thomas Masaryk, founder of the Czechoslovak republic, taught at the university between 1901 and 1903.

In Labor Dispute

Union and Corporation
Fail to Agree on Clause in Contract

Detroit —(AP)—The United Automobile Workers' movement for a 32-hour week until all workers have been recalled by motorcar manufacturers brought a clash today with one of the "big three" in the industry.

At the same time a strike vote was scheduled to be taken by U. A. W. members in one division of a second major producer, and the shorter work-week was one of the issues in that dispute.

Fifteen thousand auto workers were made idle when the union employees at the main Plymouth plant of the Chrysler corporation refused to work yesterday because the management notified them that the 40-hour week would replace the 32-hour week which had been in effect.

The union and the corporation disagreed over an interpretation of a clause in their contract providing for a 32-hour week to spread employment during periods when only part of the normal number of employees would be working.

Richard T. Frankenstein, recently-reinstated international U. A. W. A. vice president, said he would confer on the question Monday with H. L. Weckler, Chrysler vice president in charge of industrial relations.

The Plymouth workers' refusal to work yesterday because they already had completed a 32-hour week left 6,000 employees of that plant idle and also 9,000 in the Mack avenue factory of the Briggs Manufacturing company, which supplies auto bodies for Plymouth.

Action Seen as Clearing
Way for Pact With Britain
DELAYS CERTAIN
Chamberlain Must Wait
For Parliament
To Act

London —(AP)—Italy's announcement of the recall of some of her soldiers in the Spanish insurgent army was regarded today as a preliminary good will gesture to smooth the way for conclusion of the British-Italian pact which has been ineffective since April 16 when it was signed.

British official spokesmen, however, declared reports of an agreement between Prime Minister Chamberlain and Premier Mussolini for settlement of the Spanish issue were premature.

This attitude can be explained by the fact that Chamberlain virtually has assured the house of commons he will not rush the Spanish intervention issue and British-Italian pact to a conclusion until parliament has had a chance to discuss any proposed settlement. Parliament is in recess until Nov. 1.

To uphold his pledges, Chamberlain cannot conclude the Rome-London friendship accord, which means British recognition of Italian Ethiopia, until he can show a substantial withdrawal of Italian fighters from insurgent Spain.

"Token" Withdrawal
Diplomats here generally were inclined to view the Italian troop movement as a "token" withdrawal to demonstrate U. Duce's good faith in the spirit of the Munich four-power conversations.

Spanish government sources, however, declared they had no faith in it and asserted Mussolini would withdraw only such troops as would not hurt Generalissimo Francisco Franco's military cause.

They estimated there were 60,000 Italians in insurgent Spain and expressed doubt that recall of "troops with 18 months service" would involve more than 10,000 men.

FRENCH ARE PLEASED
Paris —(AP)—With the French government now seeking an improvement in its strained relations with Italy, the opinion of Premier Mussolini to withdraw some Italian soldiers from the Spanish insurgent army was taken here today as an encouraging sign.

Limitation of the recall to those who had been in the ranks for 18 months, however, caused some skeptical comment among parliament members with leftist tendencies.

These observers said the bulk of Italian forces would be left in Spain and the effect on the insurgents, therefore, would be slight. Awaiting official confirmation of the withdrawals, the government made no comment. But official spokesmen indicated that any move to allow France, as well as Britain, to renew cordial relations with Italy would be welcomed.

French communists sought today to reform the shattered people's front on a broader base in an attempt to overthrow Premier Edouard Daladier's government because of the Munich accord and to prevent a possibility of French recognition of insurgent Spain.

Maurice Thorez, secretary-general of the communist party, said his party would be willing to extend the proposition they already had made to socialists for a stronger electoral front, even to members of the republican group.

Elections Possible
Former socialist Premier Leon Blum has agreed the socialists would accept the new communist proposals if Daladier's use of his new dictatorial decree powers should force the socialists to break with him as the premier then decided to dissolve parliament and hold new elections. Daladier has been widely reported to be considering this step.

The renewed activity was believed based on the communists' increasing fear that Daladier was about to make a bargain with Italy to recognize the Spanish insurgents, as well as dissatisfaction in socialist ranks over the party's vote of confidence in Daladier after the signing of the Munich pact ending parts of Czechoslovakia to Germany.

Tobin, a council member and president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, pleaded with union delegates at the fifty-fifth annual convention yesterday to order their leaders "to try to bring about a settlement."

Democrats O. K. Bolens to Head Wisconsin Slate

Party Fills Out Ticket for General Election In State

MILWAUKEE.—The Democratic party bounced back into Wisconsin's political war today with reinforcements in the form of candidates for governor, lieutenant governor and treasurer, which it had lost in strategic post-primary maneuvers of coalitionists aiming to defeat Governor Phillip LaFollette and the Progressive party.

The newly elected state central committee, headed by William D. Carroll of Prairie du Chien, a former state senator, yesterday enlisted State Senator Harry Bolens, Port Washington, as its candidate for governor.

Bolens, 74 and recently ill, said he would confine his campaign chiefly to the radio.

"Harmonious" Meeting
In a meeting described as "harmonious," the committee named State Senator Max Galasinski of Milwaukee for lieutenant governor and T. M. Cepress of Wausau, for state treasurer after scant opposition from two other Milwaukee possibilities—respectively, Frank Zwick and Clarence Nuemann.

Regularly nominated, and still on the ticket, are William R. Callahan of Milwaukee, for secretary of state, and James E. Finnegan, Milwaukee, for attorney general, a post he once held.

There is an insurance man who never before sought office. Bolens, Galasinski and Cepress were chosen after speakers exhorted the committee to support President Roosevelt and the New Deal.

"Roosevelt," Bolens said, "still is popular. I don't always agree with everything he has done, but with three exceptions I go down the line for him."

Tabulates Exceptions
Those exceptions he tabulated as follows: (1) When Roosevelt threw support to LaFollette and gave the governor patronage instead of giving it to Senator F. Ryan Duffy and National Committeeman Charles Broughton, Sheboygan; (2) When he supported LaFollette to the detriment of former Governor Schmiedeman, and (3) when he tried to foist a state liquor control system on Wisconsin.

"Outside of that in the White House," Bolens said, "Roosevelt has not done any other thing I failed to approve of."

Action here yesterday followed the withdrawal of coalitionist Robert K. Henry of Jefferson, as the Democratic nominee for governor.

The coalition movement was the outgrowth of Phil LaFollette's capturing the campaigns of 1934 and 1936 with a minority vote in three corners.

Touches Off Blast
Henry's withdrawal touched off a gubernatorial blast.

"We have just witnessed in Wisconsin a sordid example of horse trading and checker board politics," the governor told a Stevens Point audience. "Now we see them, in all their nakedness, as they really are and have been for many years—reactionaries to the core."

"I want to right my friend, Julius Heil, (the Republican candidate) on one thing when he pleads to be elected governor because he is a good business man," Bolens said yesterday. "On the theory that a good business man always makes a good governor."

"I've been in business twice as long as Julius the had mentioned running a newspaper and a dairy farm and I want to say that business alone will never make a man qualified for the governorship. You must have political training to go along with any other training."

"We only have about 30 days to make a campaign, but we can put on a lively campaign. While Julius can pass the hat among the millionaires and get money, and the LaFollette included a former convict from Minneapolis, we haven't any money. But we still can beat them."

The Democrats chose James Martin, Thiensville, as treasurer of the state central committee, and John Slocum, Wausau, was re-elected secretary.

State Winding Up 10-Year
Land Inventory Project
Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—More than 500 employees of the Wisconsin land economic inventory in the state capitol and throughout Wisconsin are rapidly working themselves out of their jobs.

On Jan. 1, according to John S. Borden, director of the land inventory, organized 10 years ago to investigate and appraise the lands within the state, all but a handful of the large staff engaged in the task of mapping forest cover, plant life, and other features of every square mile of surface in Wisconsin, will have completed their jobs.

The project was begun 10 years ago with state funds exclusively. So little money and personnel was then available that only six counties were completed in seven years. Later federal aid was received, and today the state office is preparing to end the task of mapping and surveying 17 counties.

Entire State Mapped
The inventory was necessary because adequate planning could be begun in Wisconsin to arrive at an intelligent land-use program, according to Earl D. Hilburn, one of its supervisors.

Since WPA was enlisted three years ago, every square mile in the state has been mapped, and the maps have been assembled into townships and rechecked.

Within two months, the map of every township in the state will have been drawn in preliminary and checked in the field against the actual cover and land uses shown on the maps.

Seventy-one draftsmen are now preparing maps in district offices in Madison, Green Bay, Phillips, Menomonie and Lacrosse.

The only future work of the land economic inventory after the first of the new year will be to keep the maps up to date. A short-time task is planned for the rechecking some of the counties which were completed eight to ten years ago.

Murray 'Unfair' in Fight, Behm Says

Waupaca Republican Tells
Why He Is Independent
Candidate for Congress

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—The seventh district congressional race became a four-sided one today with the announcement by Herman H. Behm of Waupaca that he is a candidate as an independent Townsend Republican in the November election.

Behm was beaten for the Republican nomination by a relatively close margin in the primary election two weeks ago by Reid Murray of the same city. The Progressive candidate is the incumbent.

Gerald J. Boileau of Wausau, while the Democratic choice is Assemblyman James Cavanaugh of Antigo.

Behm said that there are several reasons for his independent candidacy, including requests for such a candidacy from the Townsend clubs in the district, "unfair campaigning" by his Republican primary opponent, an exceedingly tight vote in the primary which "cannot show the real verdict of the people," and the fact that the county clerk of Portage county failed to remove the name of a third Republican candidate, Arthur Prehn of Wausau who withdrew late in August, from the ticket.

The votes cast for Prehn, totaling 431, would have been almost enough to turn the election, he said, pointing out that Murray's plurality was only 496.

Behm is the proprietor of the Hotel Delavan in Waupaca, and was a candidate for congress in the district in 1936. The seventh district includes the central Wisconsin counties of Waupaca, Shawano, Marathon, Marquette, Portage, Waushara, Wood, Adams, Green Lake and Langlade.

Hitler Continues to be Idol of German Masses

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE
Berlin.—The proverb that a prophet is not without honor save in his own country doesn't apply to Nazi Leader Hitler. At this moment fresh from his triumph in the Czechoslovak crisis he is riding the crest of a wave of German adulation that in many instances closely approaches worship.

This in itself is a partial answer to the oft-repeated query in America and other countries as to whether Hitler has imposed himself and nazism on an unwilling people who are only awaiting an opportunity to escape.

Nazism has its opponents—some of them representing powerful interests in the fatherland. And there are some things which the public as a whole like and process.

But, broadly speaking, Hitler is the idol of the masses. Right now he is sitting as solidly on the top of the Nazi structure which he has built as though he were perched on the rock of Gibraltar.

That is the way matters stand and they may so continue indefinitely, but close observers say there are several things against which he must safeguard his political house if he is to ensure its permanence.

First—An exceedingly difficult economic situation which must be righted if it is not to blow up in the government's face.

Second—The urge of the intellectual section of the population for democracy or at least for intellectual self-determination.

Third—The repression which has been applied to churches both Catholic and Protestant.

Fourth—The government's anti-Semitic campaign which has had an international repercussion that has affected adversely not only Germany's relations with some other countries but her economic position.

Cheney Is Granted
Another Hearing
Suspended Securities Dealer to Have Lawyer at Next Session
Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—A request of Marshall C. Cheney, Appleton securities dealer, for a reopening by the banking commission of the hearing which was held a week ago on the commission's suspension of his license to do business has been granted.

Gregory Buentele, head of the securities division of the commission, announced Friday afternoon.

Cheney will be represented by counsel, he told the commission, when he appears at the rehearing next Thursday morning, October 13, at the capitol offices of the commission.

Cheney's license was suspended two weeks ago when a commission audit of his books disclosed an overstatement of his net worth in a sworn statement filed with the securities division last February, according to banking department officials.

At the hearing on the order for suspension Cheney appeared without a lawyer, and spoke in his own defense.

Heil Declares Farmer
In State 'Needs Help'
Mineral Point, Wis.—(AP)—"The Wisconsin farmer today needs help," Julius P. Heil, Republican candidate for governor, declared last night in an address in which he urged the government to "relieve the farmer of meddling regulations and competition with other nations in his own markets."

The farmer is "one of the first to be hit hard by whatever shortcomings exist in government, state or national," Heil said, adding: "We must not have our farming done by government. We must return our farms to those who operate them."

Injustices Seen
In Czech Problem
Delegation Wants England
And France to Re-
Examine Decisions
Geneva.—(AP)—The Czechoslovak delegation to the League of Nations committee requested a re-examination of the British and French decisions of the international committee at Berlin engaged in supervising German occupation of Sudetenland.

Declaring the committee was committing injustices especially through granting to Germany zones containing nearly 1,000,000 Czechs, the delegation said the committee decisions should be re-examined "to see whether they correspond to the desires of the British and French."

The delegation's communiqué communique maintained it "was the duty" of the French and British to protect against German claims "as reflected in the committee's work."

The committee took the 1910 census as a working basis for demarcation of a fifth zone for German occupation, without taking into account the mother tongue of the people of the affected zone, the delegation said. The census showed the language used in 1910 in dealing with authorities who were German at that time, it was contended.

The delegation also protested against any separation of Carpathian Russia from the republic, as demanded by Poles and Hungarians. Ukrainians who inhabit the region expressed an overwhelming wish in 1919 to join Czechoslovakia, the delegation said.

Seek Reduction Of Fire Hazards Through Program

National Fire Prevention Week Opens Sunday, Closes Next Saturday

National Fire Prevention Week will be observed in Appleton and the nation from Sunday through Saturday next week.

Unfortunately, fire prevention week is understood by many as being just one week a year when people made an attempt to eliminate fire hazards and after the week is gone they gradually forget all about it. Fire prevention week should be perpetuated throughout the year.

E. M. Schwahn, acting chief of the Appleton fire department, said today that Appleton firemen try to do just that. They are on duty at all times when it comes to eliminating fire hazards. Each is instructed to watch for hazards in yards and near buildings and to advise property owners about them.

The department inspector, Nick Reider, is inspecting the business and industrial districts this week, a program that is carried out every three months. Residential districts are inspected every six months.

Acting Chief Schwahn urged Appleton residents to cooperate with the department during the next week to eliminate hazards and then to carry the program through the year. Buildings, garages, homes and yards should be inspected for every possible hazard that might lead to a fire, Schwahn said.

In Wisconsin during 1937, scores of persons were killed and hundreds of others were horribly scarred and disfigured for life by fire. In Wisconsin, there were 12,508 fires last year. Approximately 8,000 of this number involved homes, and the property loss was over $2,000,000. In our industrial field, 666 store fires showed a loss of $914,328. There were 414 barn fires representing a loss of $772,331.

The 12,508 fires caused a total loss of $6,022,964. The greatest number of fires occurred in Milwaukee county, 3,085 fires and a property loss of $772,992. Dane county was next with 621 fires and a property loss of $172,631. Brown county followed with 425 fires and a loss of $203,805.

Smokers and carelessness caused 2,063 fires and a total loss of $265,801. The next greatest number of fires were caused by lightning, showing 1,298 fires and a cost of $273,799. The third greatest number of fires were caused by chimney sparks, 1,094 fires and a loss of $427,936. Faulty electric wiring was with 1,060 fires and a loss of $988,139.

New Deal Policies are Target of Wiley Attack
Fond du Lac.—(AP)—Alexander Wiley, Republican candidate for the United States senate, said last night that the New Deal has led the nation's economy into "disorder, chicanery and corruption."

After nearly six years of Democratic leadership as exemplified by the New Deal, we find ourselves with a national debt of $42,000,000,000," Wiley said. "Fourteen millions of persons are unemployed, the farmers' market is ruined, and industry has bogged down."

"New Deal social security, loudly announced, has not been reached. Instead, helpless farmers have been regimented and are victims of the inconsistent Hull tariff and Wallace AAA. Business still feels the effects of those programs, as evidenced by the 'recession' of 1937."

M. M. Bacon Given
Term for Adultery
Investor to Serve Concurrent Sentence of One Year to 18 Months

Oshkosh.—M. M. Bacon, former Appleton investor serving a sentence at Waupun for embezzlement, pleaded guilty of adultery and was sentenced to 18 months in state prison by Judge S. J. Luchinsinger in municipal court Friday afternoon.

Bacon, brought to Oshkosh from Waupun on a writ of habeas corpus, began his term on the adultery count yesterday. The term will run concurrently with the term he is serving for embezzlement.

The complaint was filed with District Attorney Lewis C. Magnusen by the defendant's wife, Mrs. Hazel Bacon, Appleton, who accused Bacon of conducting himself immorally with Miss Lillian Harju, the mother of his 10-month-old baby.

Miss Harju, who is living with Bacon's mother at Elmhurst, Wednesday pleaded guilty and was fined $100 and costs for unlawfully cohabitating with Bacon.

The practice conflicts with a city ordinance and persons doing so will be prosecuted under the law, he said. Fire on cement cracks the pavement and on asphalt burns the surface.

Couple Spent $282 During Three-Month Trailer Trip

BY CARL W. MASON
New London.—Moving about from place to place is the feature of trailing that produces the maximum cost to the traveler. When one parks the caravan in some inexpensive location and stays there for an appreciable length of time he can live for a very few dollars a week, much more cheaply than in any house.

During the trip of nearly three months from which I have just returned, I spent, for the two of us, a total of $282. We left New London July 7 and arrived home Sept. 26. During the trip we covered a total of 5,870 miles, including the use of the automobile separately from the trailer. Much of the time we were on the move with one-night stands the usual rule. We spent two weeks at Wisconsin Dells, three weeks at Manitowish, attending the A. T. A. trailer convention and that of the T. N. Cannery at nearby Traverse City. Five nights at Quebec was the third longest stop we made, no others exceeding two nights in any one place. Our route lay from New London via Wisconsin Dells, Chicago, Traverse City, Kalamazoo, Saginaw and Port Huron, Mich., across Ontario to Toronto, north to Callander, east via Ottawa and Montreal to Quebec, south to Maine and back and forth through all six New England states and finally home through Albany, N. Y., Cleveland, Ohio, up to Kalamazoo again and around by Chicago to New London.

It will be seen from this itinerary that we were almost constantly on the move, even using the car for many side trips during the periods the trailer remained in one location. I spent $22.50 for an exchange to get a new trailer oil heater, spent a few dollars for clothing, $18 for a new hitch on car and trailer, $10, or $11, for car and trailer repairs. We lived well and paid for camping privileges the larger part of the time. All this brings the expense of the trip to approximately $100 a month which I have found is a fair average for continued motor traveling for one or one or two persons for extended periods and covering a large area of country. It may be accepted as a fairly accurate standard for trailer or motor travel by two persons almost anywhere in the United States or Canada.

Use Free Space
Many trailerists make it a practice to camp in free open spaces or close to filling stations that have adequate space, allowing their gas tanks to get low toward night and then buying a new supply from the station that gives them space and perhaps a little electric current for the night. I met a California couple in New England who had been three months on the road, having crossed Wisconsin during their tour, who had paid camp fees just two nights during their long journey of some thousands of miles. They followed the practice I outlined above and have reduced the technique almost to an exact science. Many others follow the same method especially in New England where trailer camps are not so plentiful and where camp rates are higher than through this Middle West.

Every trailerist should provide himself with equipment that will enable him to be largely independent in case he cannot find a camp or if rates are too high or if he gets unexpectedly stalled somewhere along the road. I carry a 2-mantle gasoline lantern which gives a bright light throughout the trailer when I find it necessary to use it. My trailer also has an 18-gallon tank. I make it a point to keep my oil heater full and also a reserve can of kerosene in the back trunk so I could be stranded in a desert for days without being greatly inconvenienced. Of course I also carry a reserve supply of canned foods along with the rest of the supplies.

Escaped Hurricane
I narrowly escaped being caught in the tremendous hurricane that swept the New England states recently leaving there only two or three days before the storms began. But had I remained I should have suffered less than many of the "residents"—providing my caravan had escaped damage from wind, flood or falling debris—because I had supplies for almost a week with me. Incidentally it is important to have a definite plan for handling the caravan in case of such a dangerous storm.

The wise trailerist will, when the storm threatens, face his trailer head-on to the wind, the car in front of the trailer, if possible, as it is less likely to be upset and therefore constitutes something of a windbreak. If it can be done go behind a sheltering rock, hill, wall or building, taking care that a toppling of the latter would not crash upon the vehicles. Don't park among or close to trees in storms either heavy wind or electrical. A year ago last winter I was prevailed upon by friends in northern Alabama to stop a few days in the magnificent cedar and maple grove in front of their fine old southern mansion. The first night a sudden electrical storm broke the lightning an almost continuous purple glare while the thunder was terrific. One especially loud clap almost upset us and we knew lightning had struck close by. Next day I found that a huge maple not 100 feet distant from the trailer had been struck and denuded of bark and some branches.

In case of a really serious storm being threatened it is probably wise to hook up the caravan and move to a higher or more sheltered location, as the case may be.

Appleton Man Pays $10
Fine in Oshkosh Court
Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau
Oshkosh.—Nick P. Engler, 1746 N. Drew street, Appleton, paid a fine of $10 and costs in municipal court here yesterday afternoon before Judge S. J. Luchinsinger, after pleading guilty to a charge of speeding in a school zone.

Engler, a salesman, was arrested by Winnebago county Highway Officer Irving Slup, who said the Appleton man drove 58 miles an hour through the school zone on County Trunk A at the Adella Beach school, just south of Neenah.

'Hold That Coed' To Show 4 Days

John Barrymore Plays Part of Coed Chasing Governor

If you can imagine John Barrymore as a budget-bouncing, coed-chasing governor who mixes good football with bad statecraft, you will begin to get a rough idea of the uproarious goings-on at the Appleton Theater where "Hold That Coed" opens today for a 4-day showing. The stars are Marjorie Weaver, George Murphy, Joan Davis and Jack Haley who contribute generously to what is probably the funniest comedy of recent months.

For those who take their football seriously there are some of the most exciting gridiron sequences ever screened. And for those who don't there is Joan Davis—who turns out to be the world's best goalkicker and, as far as we know, the only female fullback to exist.

The story of "Hold That Coed" is particularly topical in view of the medicine-show electioneering seen around the country lately. Barrymore appropriates $10,000,000 of the taxpayers' money to build up the state university—and particularly, its football team, the idea being that a winning team will bring him tremendous publicity for his forthcoming election campaign.

When Coach George Murphy protests that there isn't good enough material for a big-league team, Barrymore promptly hires two mountain wrestlers to bolster up the line and then adds Joan Davis who holds a long distance record for drop-kicking, to the backfield for good measure. And with all the campus cuties campaigning for Barrymore, it looks as though his election is in the bag—even if his romance with Marjorie Weaver, his pretty secretary, isn't. But while Marjorie and Murphy hold hands, Barrymore consoles himself with a campus cutie and the fadeout—following the most riotous football contest imaginable—finds everyone happy, particularly the audience.

The second feature on this program is "Juvenile Court" which is a sweeping expose of youth in a big city's slums. This picture features Paul Kelly, Rita Hayworth and Frankie Darro.

Both of these big pictures are Movie Quiz Pictures.

Youngsters Promising In Marriage Comedy

The laughable difficulties of a young married couple is spotlighted in the newest entrant for comedy honors, "Vacation From Love," which will open at the Appleton Theatre Wednesday, Oct. 12, and will be shown for 3 days.

Dennis O'Keefe and Florence Rice, two youngsters who promise to make a strong bid for stardom within the next year, are teamed for the first time in the comedy. Miss Rice as the rich daughter of a testy advertising man is the perfect symbol of a bewildered wife who doesn't understand why her husband likes to spend an evening or two with the boys. O'Keefe, a young man constitutionally opposed to matrimony, weakens and marries Miss Rice although he tells her he is afraid of what is going to happen to them. As a happy-go-lucky, irresponsible youth he has the finest part of his brief career.

The supporting cast is noteworthy, including Reginald Owen whose performance as the granite-jawed, albeit weak-minded advertising genius is a triumph in satire, and June Knight who introduces a new hit song, "Let's Pretend It's True."

Director George Fitzmaurice has shown adroitness and skill in weaving the web of laughter which makes the picture a fast-moving, always hilarious story.

The second feature on this program is "Border G-Men." The story is ultra modern and involves the recent Neutrality Act, while the unique background is laid on the gulf coast of Texas where fast smuggling ships, machine guns, short wave radio and other modern devices have their place in the thrilling plot. The picture features George O'Brien and a supporting cast including Laramie Johnson, John Miljan, Ray Whitley and Rita LaRoy.

'Port of Seven Seas' Showing Today, Sunday

Wallace Beery's long success on the screen has been dominated by a steadfast refusal to be typed. The result has been a series of triumphs in so variegated a series of pictures as "Min and Bill," "The Champ," "The Big House" and "Bad Man of Brimstone."

Now he creates another new

ANDY HARDY COMING TO ELITE

Singing Judy Garland meets the Hardy Family in "Love Finds Andy Hardy," which comes to the Elite theatre for 3 days starting next Wednesday, presenting the latest doings of what has become the screen's most beloved family group. Lewis Stone once again enacts the sympathetic Judge and all the other members of the series are present, including Mickey Rooney, Cecilia Parker, Fay Holden, Ann Rutherford and Betty Ross Clarke.

MovieLand It's People and Products

Olivia de Havilland—with a tantalizing twinkle—a hint of the Oriental in the rakishly tipped fez and lifted veil—more than a hint of the modern in the black wool frock and the rose-braided jacket—will be amusing you next in "Hard to Get."

By Jimmie Fidler

Hollywood — Personal Observations: Pat O'Brien like General Grant, has a habit of falling asleep with a cigar in his mouth. George Raft uses as much care in brushing his shoe-polish hair as an artist would spend on touching up a great painting. If fricassee chicken is on the menu, Claudette Colbert invariably orders it. Gail Patrick's wedding ring is a full inch in width. Two tiny Hawaiian charm bracelets always dangle from Shirley Temple's wrist.

Wallace Beery, in a hurry rolls from port to starboard like a sailor on shore leave. There's a startling resemblance between Alice Faye today and pictures taken thirty years ago of Sophie Tucker. Director W. S. Van Dyke, a colonel in the Marine Reserves, gets the jitters if a moth happens to fly near him. John Littel rolls his own cigarettes, then smokes them in a swanky holder. If there's a paper clip his shoe-polish hair as an artist would spend on touching up a great painting. If fricassee chicken is on the menu, Claudette Colbert invariably orders it. Gail Patrick's wedding ring is a full inch in width. Two tiny Hawaiian charm bracelets always dangle from Shirley Temple's wrist.

character for motion pictures, the rough, dynamic, big-hearted Cesar of "Port of Seven Seas," in which he stars with Frank Morgan, Maureen O'Sullivan, John Beal and Jessie Ralph. The new picture is showing at the Elite Theatre today and Sunday.

A new locale for Hollywood, the gay waterfront of Marseilles, is the background of the picture, adapted to the screen from Marcel Pagnol's famous stage play, "Fanny," which ran for two years in Paris.

The story is woven around Cesar, owner of a Marseilles cafe, his son, Marius, and Madelon, the girl Marius loves. When Marius sails away in search of adventure, leaving Madelon behind, Cesar transfers the affection he has for his son to her. Cesar helps Madelon work out her problem in a unique way, with a surprise climax.

'Mother Carey's Chickens' at Rio

Picture on Twin Bill Next Week Taken From Wiggins Story

Bubbling with the humor and naturalness that made the original Kate Douglas Wiggin story one of the best-sellers of its day, the film version of "Mother Carey's Chickens" heads the special mid-week program on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at the Rio theater.

Closely following the book, the film deals with the interesting careers of the Careys. The head of the family, a naval officer, dies during the war with Spain, and his wife and four children, left penniless save for a scanty pension, try to carry on as their father would have wished.

Though the efforts of a young school teacher who is in love with the oldest daughter, the Careys leave the tenement in which they are living and take over an old, tumble-down house in the country. They remodel it as a teachers' boarding house, but unforeseen complications arise just as they complete the task. The climax is charged with hilarity as the family adopts a unique method of disposing an unpleasant couple who claim their house.

Against this background are played interlocking romances between the two daughters and their respective admirers, all thoroughly steeped in the colorful atmosphere of the late nineties and enriched with Miss Wiggin's sparkling comedy.

Anne Shirley and Ruby Keeler, as the daughters, are cast romantically opposite Frank Albertson and James Ellison, respectively. Fay Bainter portrays the highly sympathetic mother.

Jackie Moran and Donnie Dunagan as the other two "chickens," Ralph Morgan as the ill-fated navy captain-father, Walter Brennan as a typical New England store-keeper and Phyllis Kennedy, Margaret Hamilton, Harvey Clark, Virginia Weidler, George Irving and other well known players contribute to the film's realism.

Co-featured on the same program is "Meet the Girls," a comedy mystery starring June Lang and Lynn Bari.

ROBINSON IN 'I AM THE LAW'

Edward G. Robinson, most dynamic actor on the screen today, brings to the Appleton Theatre starting Saturday, Oct. 15, the most powerful characterization he has ever presented. Also in the cast of this picture are Wendy Barrie, Otto Kruger, John Beal and Barbara O'Neil.

ADDED Historical Novelty Reel "Man on the Rocks" Paramount News Reel Scene: "Boys Town"

BEERY-ROONEY CO-STAR IN PICTURE

Co-starring Wallace Beery and Mickey Rooney, "Stablemates," is booked to open an engagement at the Rio theater soon.

The story, a dramatic revelation of the friendship of a broken veterinary and a penniless stable boy, takes Beery back to the characterization he gave in "The Champ" and with Marie Dressler in "Min and Bill" and "Tugboat Annie." Mickey Rooney has a role that tests his acting ability more than anything he has yet done on the screen, similar to his part in "Boys Town."

photographed with," he announced on his arrival here—"as long as it's Dorothy Lamour." The Paramount publicity man chaperoning him was sympathetic. "You must be a red-hot Lamour fan," he suggested. "No—not particularly," replied young Mr. Good. "There are lots of other stars I like better, but my roommate is nuts about her. He'll go crazy when I hang a picture of Miss Lamour and myself—on my side of the room!"

Mary Parker, one of the cutest little tricks that ever came out of the Lone Star state, has been fighting for years to get rid of her nickname, "Punkins." It stuck to her in radio work and, to her great distress, Paramount, on signing her for pictures decided to bill her as Punkins Parker. Recently, when her good work in several other films was rewarded by an important role in "St. Louis Blues," Mary gave the studio an ultimatum—either they would quit advertising that nickname—or else Paramount gave in, but Miss Parker is still in despair. The character she plays in the picture will bear the name, "Punkins."

Speaking of nicknames, did you know that Olivia de Havilland's intimate friends call her "Bunny"—because she wiggles her nose like a rabbit's when she talks?

Whenever anyone makes an unkind criticism of motion pictures, dyed in the wool Hollywoodites invariably alibi by asserting that "the industry is still very young." As compared with certain others, it is—but we are outgrowing the alibi. And I was reminded of it today by the thirty-four year-old son of the late Lon Chaney, whom I encountered on the corner of Sunset and Gower, where Hollywood's first studios were built. Creighton pointed out the site of the old Horsley lot. "My dad worked there," he said, "more than thirty years ago. He used to bring me to work with him every day and before going in to bed me down in a manger of an old stable that stood back of the studio. I slept there while Hollywood's first feature pictures were being made."

Lunched in the Warner Brothers Green Room with John Garfield and Jeffrey Lynn. Joan Bennett was sitting at a table near us, chatting with a group of players. There came a lull in the luncheon babble and I thought I heard her say, "I tell you—I'm not blushing!" I was craning to see what went on when Garfield, noting my curiosity, said dryly: "Don't get excited—she said 'blushing,' not 'blushing.' Hollywood's all bluff—nothing so sincere as a blush in this town." That one left me speechless. Garfield's a brand-new comer—but it's evidently a shrewd observer, for all that.

Ray Enright and Busby Berkeley directed, and the musical numbers, which include "I Wanna Go Back to Bali," "Day Dreaming," "Stranger in Paradise," and "The Latin Quarter," were supplied by tunesmiths Harry Warren, Al Dubin and Johnny Mercer.

Rudy Vallee, crooning maestro of the airwaves, heads the cast and golden-voiced Rosemary Lane is featured opposite him, with Gloria Dickson doing a feminine menace. The Schnickelfritz Band, a specialty outfit that is taking the country by storm with their rosy antics, take care of the rhythm with Hugh Herbert, Allen Jenkins, Melville Cooper and Mabel Tood in charge of comedy. ANOTHER LABOR REFERENDUM

Resentment against the Wagner law and some of the labor tactics developed under it has been keenest on the Pacific coast where Dave Beck for the AFL and Harry Bridges for the CIO have made a shambles out of business, industry, transportation and labor.

The people of Los Angeles supplied by referendum omissions in the Wagner act. And now the state of Washington will vote upon the adoption of a statute aimed at preventing the abuses most complained against in the Seattle territory.

This Washington law is proposed and backed by several organizations including the Associated Farmers, the Women of Washington, and many men in the ranks of labor who have been disappointed at the way labor's affairs have been conducted. Recent straw votes, even in Seattle which is a strong union town, have so frightened the battling labor leaders that Beck and Bridges have been able to create a united front upon one subject, and that is the defeat of the measure.

The proposed law makes it "unlawful to cause a strike or go on strike" until thirty days after written demands are submitted to the employer, unless the employer refuses to negotiate with the workers. Neither can a strike be called until a majority of the employees in the operation affected by the dispute vote in a secret ballot at an election supervised by the county auditor. Moreover all picketing is made illegal until the strike actually takes place, the employer is prohibited from declaring a lockout during the same time and every effort to intimidate workers or boycott the employer is likewise outlawed.

The proposed law is radically different in some respects from that already adopted at Los Angeles, and if this practice continues throughout the country we are going to make of the settlement of labor disputes about as crazy a quilt as was ever stitched together by the blind.

The unfortunate result to which we are steering is naturally to be expected from all intentionally unfair legislation.

And the Wagner law was intentionally unfair.

Little wonder is it that Messrs. Beck and Bridges can see nothing but a shaky nightmar to come from this legislation. Recognizing as they do that the state of Washington has always been one of the best disposed in the country toward union labor they cannot escape a feeling of calamity at the thought of that state curbing labor activity.

And they are right. If this statute is passed, as the straws indicate, it is bound to sap labor's national prestige, much of which it has earned upon its merits.

But isn't action of this sort really invited by the lapses in the Wagner Act?

FIFTY CENTURIES HENCE

At the New York World's Fair grounds a Time Capsule which is to carry certain records to our descendants of 5,000 years hence was duly deposited in the earth that holds in its great lap so many men and so many of their efforts.

One of the most interesting features of this action is the remarkable amount of information that can be compressed into a relatively small receptacle made out of copper alloy and only seven feet high.

The message which is thus attempted, and with some pride, to convey our accomplishments to posterity contains more than 10 million words plus a thousand pictures and all compressed into about a thousand feet of microfilm. In addition to this moving story the capsule contains about a hundred items. There is a man's pipe, a woman's hat, a surrealist painting, a swing song and a symphony. So much is compressed into this capsule that those who find it may learn from its contents more about today than any dozen men living could tell.

Since certain languages that existed along the Nile 5,000 years ago have disappeared and the equally proud stories of ancient man engraved on granite monuments could never have been translated excepting for the fortunate discovery of the Rosetta Stone they have wisely included in the capsule certain extensive aids to translation including a standard dictionary and a dictionary of slang. The fable of the north wind and the sun in 20 languages, and the Lord's prayer in 300. And if that doesn't make it plain to those condemned to carry on this early existence so far hence it just isn't our fault.

The addresses made at the ceremony of the sealing of the capsule indicated a suppressed pride in the great achievements of humanity today and a vision of the startled wonder with which the natives so long in the future will look upon our works and marvel at our wisdom, progress, and the miracles we accomplished.

If they ever get the contents of this capsule they may marvel but only as we marveled when King Tut's tomb was opened and we beheld the gaudy articles buried with his remains so many centuries ago.

The people 5,000 years hence will have made great strides in certain directions but today we do not know what direction. The 50 intervening centuries will mark tremendous advances in some lines but what lines we cannot know.

That, at least, is a correct statement in comparing our civilization today with that of 50 centuries ago. Inventive genius sometimes goes to work upon art, and great paintings appear before the brush that catches even the glint in a twinkling eye or the mirth in a suppressed smile. And then genius switches and concentrates upon labor saving devices and machines are turned out by great factories that seem to think and act as humans. And suddenly the genius hidden in men's minds attacks human suffering and diseases are nailed to the mast and medicines that soothe the pain and bring rest and comfort are laboriously produced.

The struggle of mankind up from the dark pit and out from the equally dark cave has been a highly irregular one, but it has been an advancing one. If we could turn men's genius into the channel that now calls loudly for attention it would be directed at solving the relations of peoples to one another, a problem that becomes the more important as the people increase in numbers but the earth does not increase in area.

OLD AGE PENSIONS MUST BE PAID AGAIN

Up to the first of July this year the government of the United States had collected 703 millions from employer and worker for old age pensions and had paid out only a little over 5 millions under the act.

It is of critical importance to follow this money because it will reveal clearer than any description how Mexico-like are some of the financial operations of the present administration.

For every cent of all these millions has been spent. Paid into the general fund of the treasury it has come out even faster than it went in. Some of it has helped elect Barkley down in Kentucky. Some of it has paid for WPA theatre projects, some of it for farm relief, and the rest for every conceivable federal expenditure.

When the government takes this money out of its pocket and spends it it places in that pocket an IOU. Its note carries 3 per cent interest and is credited to the "old age reserve account."

But when the government does this it is really bandying with words, playing hocus-pocus. Its example might suggest to the next man on trial for embezzlement, that is using funds committed in trust to his care, that he merely slip an IOU in his pocket from whence he look the bills and everything will be hunky-dory. For there is no security for these notes excepting the credit of the government, considered excellent it is true, and meaning that in all reasonable probability somehow, some day, the workers will get their pension money but only, we insist, by pyramiding the very tax they have already paid.

And since this money has been used and is not replaced by the obligations of others duly secured, it can only be repaid if the government of the United States raises taxes to pay it.

The worker and employer who have already paid in these millions must be taxed once more in order to pay the 703 millions now owed by the government to the fund.

If the men in charge of the finances of this government cannot see this point, cannot appreciate that what the worker and employer have already paid in direct taxes, they must again pay in indirect taxes, cannot understand that this is the very offense of pyramiding that brought the In-sull empire low, then we may pray their forgiveness for the reason that "they know not what they do," but ask in startled wonder how such men ever came to be in charge of the greatest government on the earth.

A Verse for Today
By Anne Campbell

NOW HE COMES HOME

Now he comes home across the autumn fields,
Where he so often walked with swining stride,
But no dog scampers gladly by his side,
And underneath his feet no brown soil yields.

The sun swings low. . . . No birds call in the gloom
To him who always loved their happy songs.
Yet it is on this farm that he belongs,
And over the last trail he hurries home.

He will lie here by windows facing north,
And all his friends will come, but none will speak
To him, but more than one will touch his cheek,
And breathe a prayer, then sadly journey forth.

Over this fruitful land he loved so well,
The autumn haze will hang, and he will come,
His body and his spirit called it home,
Forever on these acres he will dwell.

All those who pass will see the turrets rise,
With thoughts of him, and they will speak his name,
And know the farm will never be the same,
In spite of friendly trees and soft blue skies.

But those who look through panes of shining glass
Across the meadows where his spirit runs
Will see him always in the changing suns
Of every season, through all the years that pass.

DALE HARRISON'S In Old New York

New York—I just got back from Sing Sing. It was an invitation affair—no judge had anything to do with it.

The truth is, I went up with Cornelia Otis Skinner. That's my idea of the way to go to prison. Miss Skinner is a gracious lady; and on this occasion was playing Lady Bountiful to 2,300 of Warden Lewis E. Lawes' boys. It wasn't what they call in New York a "newspaper party." The only reason I was along was because once out in the middle west I played reception committee—one to Miss Skinner's entrance into our town. The official reception committee (from the Men's Dinner Club, if you must know) had gone to the wrong station. Ever since, Miss Skinner and I have had a bond of sympathy. And this, for me at least, was the second adventure worth recording.

If I ever have to stay in a prison any length of time, I hope it'll be Sing Sing. I've been in some of our best prisons but never any like Sing Sing.

There are stone walls, of course, and iron bars—but there's also that great sweep of the Hudson river—and beyond that, the wooded hills of the further New York shore. After months on Manhattan, it doesn't seem like a prison at all, but like the Great Outdoors. There's no wall between the prison and the river. Only the "squealers," the Death Row inmates and those who have had their privileges taken away from them are denied the run of "The Yard." For the others, it's a much more healthful place than the tenement sections of New York City. They're lucky and they know it. That's probably the reason that no one has even tried to escape from Sing Sing in six years.

When the Warden told me that, he tapped on wood and remarked, "We're over due"—but that's because the Warden knows that when you get 2,800 criminals together, you're bound to get a few half-wits into the bargain—a few who would rather be on the outside, being chased, than on the inside enjoying the freedom of "The Yard." In the 19 years or so that Warden Lawes has been there, no one has escaped from Sing Sing without being caught.

The Warden has lots of problems, but knowing my New York, I'll bet the politicians give him more worries than the criminals.

The normal capacity of Sing Sing is 1,800. There are 2,748 there now. That'll give you some idea. It that won't, this will: the normal Negro population of any prison in the state is 16 per cent; the Negro population at Sing Sing is close to 40 per cent. Or perhaps this point is even stronger: the oldest cell block in the prison holds 800 men; it was built in 1836 and it has neither running water nor sewage.

That's where Richard Whitney is. It's not punishment, just routine. When a man comes into the prison, he has to take the old cell block. Graduation from there is on a basis of seniority. The prison receives guests at the rate of 20 to 25 a week. It takes eight months to get out of that antiquated building, but what can a warden do? He doesn't allocate the state's funds.

My eyes never got any wider than when Miss Skinner stepped out before 2,800 men in the chapel on her first morning. That'll give you some idea. It that won't, this will: the normal Negro population of any prison in the state is 16 per cent; the Negro population at Sing Sing is close to 40 per cent. Or perhaps this point is even stronger: the oldest cell block in the prison holds 800 men; it was built in 1836 and it has neither running water nor sewage.

Appleton, through the part played in the development of the electrical industry in the United States, was to receive a prominent place in the huge museum then being constructed at Dearborn, Mich., by Henry Ford, according to James W. Bishop, special representative of Mr. Ford, who was in the city that day investigating the early work in the field in this city.

A Bystander In Washington
BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—By actual measurement the "war zone" occupies only about 10 per cent of Washington. During the past tense days, however, it has been almost impossible to remember that the other 90 per cent of the government has something to do, too.

For instance, in the very hour that President Roosevelt appealed to Hitler to keep his finger off the trigger, the bureau of public health came out with an engaging study designed to prove—as far as limited tests could do—that alcoholics are not especially subject to suggestion.

It has been believed a long time that chronic drunks were easy victims of suggestion. Not so, says the bureau, at least during their sober intervals. (Darn it, they didn't test 'em while they were high.) The bureau tested 100 hospital attendants who were not alcoholics, and then tested 46 patients committed for chronic alcoholism. They all came out the same, no difference between the groups.

It was the famous "sway" test. The subject, blindfolded, is told he is "falling, falling forward, falling forward, feel the weight shift from your heels to your toes." But the alcoholics were as much inclined to say "phooey" as the teetotallers.

Sky Roundup

The department of the interior found airplanes good not only for bombing but for rounding up 500 wild horses on the desert ranges for southeastern Oregon. The horses, mostly useless wasters of cattle range, are canned for dog meat or shipped to Europeans who find a good horse steak not so bad.

From the Department of Agriculture we learn that Europeans, though tempted to reach for a rifle, have reached for a cigar instead. "Consumption of tobacco products," solemnly reports the department, "has continued to expand in most European countries in recent months in spite of a general decline in business activity. The increase has been accompanied by a shift to cigars."

The same departmental handout repeats an editorial from the North American Veterinarian suggesting that veterinarians should be required to take a one year internship, the way physicians do in regular hospitals. Imagine a veterinary interne patting the cheek of the pretty little blonde horse-nurse.

Fox Foundlings

While talk of death and disaster were on all hands, the rangers in Sequoia national park found a dead female fox and immediately set about hunting for her young. They found them, too, and each took one of the five youngsters home to raise on a bottle. "One, a female, seems at times as affectionate as a puppy dog would be, pretending to bite her human playfellows, but so gently that it is unmistakable that no harm is intended."

Hurried and agitated as were state department staffers, the plodding elevators in the buttery old building refused to hasten. "The late Elihu Root, on the way to the second floor, stopped one of these elevators," relates Senator J. Ham Lewis of Illinois.

"Going up?" asks Root.

"Yes," replies the operator.

"On what day will you arrive?" asks Root.

And so to bed, with the town still wondering what an air bomb would do if it hit the Washington monument.

Near Completion of Index of Factories Operating in State
Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison—An index of all factories in Wisconsin and the products which they manufacture has been nearly completed by the state department of commerce, it has been announced by W. F. Ashe, director.

The index will include the location of all factories employing more than seven persons, with details on everything they produce arranged under 221 major classifications. A manufacturer's guide for Wisconsin may be published for distribution later, Ashe indicated.

The index will be valuable to persons who want to know more about specific Wisconsin industries, and will direct purchasers to sources of supply, Ashe said.

The index is one part of the taxation study begun by the department to determine the respective tax burden on Wisconsin industries as compared with similar industries in neighboring states.

The department of commerce was organized in April to act as the spokesman for business in the state government.

STRUCK 'ICE'

Walden, Colo.—47—Nature has an excellent dry ice refrigerating plant five miles north of here, but unless man can rid it of an oily odor he probably won't be able to use it.

An oil company, drilling for oil, struck a carbon dioxide gas field that will flow at the rate of 25,000,000 cubic feet a day. Dry ice is made from the gas. All efforts to rid the well of its oil content have failed and engineers said the oil odor prevents its use commercially.

LUNCHES SERVED

Children, Teachers—The Union rural school is better than balanced so students this year will eat hot lunches instead of sandwiches from a sack.

Discovering a cash balance in the treasury, the school board installed a kitchen and dining room in the school and announced free hot lunches will be served the students until the end of the term.

Now Pitching for the Democrats

The cartoon depicts a man in a suit and tie, running quickly towards the right. He is looking back over his shoulder with a worried expression. A signpost on the ground points towards the right and reads "TO THE SHOWERS". The man is carrying a briefcase. The background is simple, with some foliage and a fence line.

Your Birthday

"LIBRA" is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:15 a. m. until 12:15 p. m. from 2:15 to 4:15 p. m., and from 8:15 to 10:15 p. m. The danger periods are from 8:15 to 10:15 a. m.; from 6:15 to 8:15 p. m., and from 10:15 p. m. until midnight.

Good resolutions made this day are apt to be easily kept, and are likely to be very fortunate ones. Many hopes and aspirations may be realized. Nearly every important thing done this day will be traceable perhaps to some sentimental reason. Gossipers repeating ambiguous remarks, which they have interpreted as they have seen fit, may cause a good deal of trouble brewing. Hearsay remarks should not be taken too seriously. Undue anxiety to do things or to get to places quickly probably will be responsible for most of this day's accidents. With some people it will be almost an obsession to assert their authority upon the slightest pretext, with the result that many embarrassing situations will be created. Married and engaged couples, as well as those experiencing the thrills of a great love alone can give must be careful that through being self-contradictory, this day, they do not involve themselves in some intricate situation.

If a woman and October 9 is your birthday, you may have a lively imagination and an intense desire for work that will enable you to make good use of your ideas. You are likely to have many opportunities in social activities, for they may be the means of helping you to see some pet ambition become a reality. The treatment you accord to others perhaps will be the same that will be accorded you. As an author, teacher, artist, musician or business executive the chances are you will be favored by Lady Luck's smile. Through marriage most of your dreams are likely to become realities.

The child born on October 9 can generally be counted upon to do the right thing at the right time. Through thrift, hard work and real merit, there appears to be no obstacle that children born on this day cannot overcome.

If a man and October 9 is your birthday, you ought to have the talent of recognizing and capitalizing opportunities when they come your way. Through the practice of law, medicine, contracting, building, promoting, writing, acting or selling, you may find yourself in an enviable financial position.

Meeting at Colson Home

Shiocton—Members of a club recently organized, which will include sewing and cards as a pastime, were entertained by Mrs. Lowell Colson, at her home Tuesday evening. Those present were Mrs. Kenneth Morse, Mrs. Mearl McCully, Mrs. Royce Locke, Mrs. Delbert Schwandt, Mrs. Kenneth Andrews, Mrs. Donald Andrews and Mrs. Glen O'Brien.

The second class of first aid instructions was conducted at the WPA hall Wednesday evening by Elmer D. Scott of Appleton. A lesson in bandaging was given. Classes will be held each Wednesday evening until twelve lessons are presented. Besides WPA workers, others interested may attend the meetings.

Questions and Answers
Heart Reserve Power

A doctor said it is possible to build up heart reserve by resting. E's doctor said it is impossible to build up reserve power, that all one can do is to protect what heart reserve one has by resting. (Mrs. E. J. M.)

Answer—In valvular trouble when there is decompensation (dilatation) rest in bed is essential to restore the reserve power necessary to maintain efficient circulation despite the backward leakage of part of the blood pumped at each heart beat. A heart so handicapped (by valvular insufficiency) must have more than ordinary or normal reserve power in order to pump enough blood to compensate for the constant backward leakage. Send stamped addressed envelope bearing your address and ask for monograph on valvular insufficiency.

Botulism

I did not understand, and my neighbor did not understand, your reply to the question about botulism. You said boiling for one-half hour will destroy the toxin or poison of botulism but not the spores if any present in the canned food. (Mrs. W. J. W.)

Answer—Spores are the seed or reproductive part of the germs. Spores are extremely resistant to heat. The toxin of botulism is the poison secreted by the germs. Heating the food after removal from the can may destroy the poison or toxin in it but may fail to kill the botulism germs in it. If any present, Best rule is to discard any canned food which on opening looks, tastes or smells at all queer. In canning, select only perfectly fresh food which has not been long exposed or handled.

It Is The Cri

If there is no such thing as a "cold," as you so stoutly maintain, what would you call...? (P. M. H.)

Answer—What does it matter? Send twenty-five cents and stamped envelope bearing your address, for booklet "Call it Cri." The important thing is to recognize that it is probably communicable, whatever you call it, and to follow the golden rule of hygiene.

Personal Health Talks
BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

POSTURE AND FATIGUE

Children and adolescents, as well as their parents, often offer as an explanation or excuse for bad posture the plea that it is so tiring to maintain good posture.

One of the freak notions of good posture formerly entertained even by physicians and physical directors or physical educators, and still cherished by some of them, is that good posture requires that one hold the belly in and flat. (Old timers generally speak of it as the "abdomen" but the abdomen is a cavity and it doesn't budge in or out or up or down unless the whole body goes right along with it. Still quainter ginks pronounce it abdomen—once instance of difference about the do in Yankeland. Call it abdomen and you'll never have to blush about it.)

Insistence on this freak notion of holding in or drawing up the belly adds unnecessarily to the onus of good posture. In practice it is far better to ignore the belly altogether. If the movable parts of the body are properly disposed or carried the belly will take care of itself. Never mind where your belly is. Consider rather where your chin, the crown of your head and your great toe joints are.

A simple experiment shows how much more fatiguing poor posture is than good posture: Try standing with knees slightly bent in a crouch. You tire far more quickly than you do from standing with the knees straight.

In the graceful, normal erect posture the body framework is supported mainly by the bones. Not in the exaggerated toy soldier or musical comedy butler attitude, which upsets balance as far in one way as the careless slump or lazy slouch does in the other.

Without implying that anybody is a monkey, it is interesting to note that animals have only one curve, convex or rounded back, in the whole spinal column. So have human infants. The concave or forward curve in the lumbar or loin region develops to establish stability in the erect posture; it is more firmly stamped upon the spine of the European than upon the spine of the savage and is regarded by anthropologists as a sign of advance in the scale of evolution.

The highly trained soldier or the thoracic drilled soldier does not stand erect when at ease. It is normal and natural to change from one posture to another when standing for a long time, to change the strain from one set of muscles to another. The child or youth who cannot assume an erect posture for even a few minutes, but shifts constantly from one position to another, is not so much a victim of bad habit as he is of bad nutrition. Generally such a youngster needs more vitamin B complex, more calcium and phosphorus, more sunshine vitamin D.

Questions and Answers
Heart Reserve Power

A doctor said it is possible to build up heart reserve by resting. E's doctor said it is impossible to build up reserve power, that all one can do is to protect what heart reserve one has by resting. (Mrs. E. J. M.)

Answer—In valvular trouble when there is decompensation (dilatation) rest in bed is essential to restore the reserve power necessary to maintain efficient circulation despite the backward leakage of part of the blood pumped at each heart beat. A heart so handicapped (by valvular insufficiency) must have more than ordinary or normal reserve power in order to pump enough blood to compensate for the constant backward leakage. Send stamped addressed envelope bearing your address and ask for monograph on valvular insufficiency.

Botulism

I did not understand, and my neighbor did not understand, your reply to the question about botulism. You said boiling for one-half hour will destroy the toxin or poison of botulism but not the spores if any present in the canned food. (Mrs. W. J. W.)

Answer—Spores are the seed or reproductive part of the germs. Spores are extremely resistant to heat. The toxin of botulism is the poison secreted by the germs. Heating the food after removal from the can may destroy the poison or toxin in it but may fail to kill the botulism germs in it. If any present, Best rule is to discard any canned food which on opening looks, tastes or smells at all queer. In canning, select only perfectly fresh food which has not been long exposed or handled.

It Is The Cri

If there is no such thing as a "cold," as you so stoutly maintain, what would you call...? (P. M. H.)

Answer—What does it matter? Send twenty-five cents and stamped envelope bearing your address, for booklet "Call it Cri." The important thing is to recognize that it is probably communicable, whatever you call it, and to follow the golden rule of hygiene.

State Winds Up Largest Game-Bird Propagation Program in History

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison — The state conservation department today announced practical completion for this year of what it called "the largest game-bird propagation program in the history of Wisconsin, and possibly the largest program of its kind the world has ever known."

At the same time tentative plans for 1939 were revealed, showing that 1,000 additional breeding pens at the Poynette farm will be used, besides increased incubation facilities for 36,000 eggs. Thus the total incubation capacity of the farm will be brought to 145,000 game-bird eggs of various species next year.

Significant in this year's program, the department pointed out, is the fact that game-bird distribution was carried to northern counties. In former years this work was largely confined to the southern, central and eastern sections. This year the operations were extended further north to Shawano, Oconto and Marinette counties.

Good Hunting
In many Wisconsin counties, according to W. F. Grimmer of the department, the number of birds stocked this year will exceed the number of birds shot in 1937. "This, in addition to the natural increase in the state's game bird population promises exceptionally fine sport this fall for hunters," the department's bulletin pointed out.

Highlights of the department's review of its 1938 activities: a doubling in the number of day old pheasant chicks distributed; stocking of wild turkeys; experimental release of 500 valley quail and further plantings of Hungarian partridge; production of 17,000 pheasants for retention as breeding stock for next year at the state farm; distribution of more than 42,000 eggs to 4-H clubs, future farmer organizations, Boy Scouts, and individual farmers; distribution of 22,500 full-winged young birds as county allotments to 63 Wisconsin counties; distribution of 80,000 day-old pheasant chicks to cooperating sportsmen's groups in 55 counties; and distribution of 35,000 four to five week old pheasants to similar state organizations.

"I believe," Grimmer said, "that no game management or propagation project has ever been so enthusiastically received as our day-old chick and four week old pheasant distribution program this year. In spite of the increase we have made in hatching and brooding facilities at the farm this year, we could not have realized this year's accomplishment without the sincerely aggressive efforts and support of our sportsmen's groups in hatching, rearing and releasing great numbers of these game birds."

Berlin — (P) All German passports in the hands of Jews living within the German reich have been declared invalid by a decree of the interior ministry.

Jews must surrender the documents within two weeks from yesterday, when the decree was signed. If a Jew wishes to travel abroad, his passport—if his plan to travel is approved—may be made valid again by a special amendment entered in the document.

The measure raised a problem for United States authorities in Germany. American authorities estimated several thousand passports bearing American immigration visas were made void by the decree.

The United States consulate in Berlin alone has been issuing visas to persons wishing to enter the United States at the rate of 30 daily. Applicants naturally take some time between obtaining the visas and liquidating their affairs.

No applicant knows whether he is regarded fit for entering the United States until he has passed both consular and medical tests. Hence the final disposition of personal affairs usually is not accomplished until the passport carries the visa stamp.

Jews presently living or traveling abroad, if German citizens, must surrender their passports within two weeks after returning to Germany.

No fashion of the last few years has caused so much controversy as the upswep hair-dress. From New York to San Francisco women are wondering whether to pile their curls on top of their heads or keep their long flowing bobs, whether to look sophisticated or girlish. Among the young women of this community who have adopted the new coiffure are these four, all of them proof that it can be becoming. Mrs. Norbert Verbrick, Menasha, upper left, who was elected president of Mu Phi Epsilon, honor music sorority, alumnae this week, demonstrates how smart swept up hair is for formal wear, when flowers and jewelry can be used to complement it. One of the light-haired girls who has adopted the new mode is Miss Gwendolyn Vandawarka, upper right. Miss Marguerite Zuehlke, lower left, and Miss Helen McGrath, lower right, are others who have tried the high coiffure and like it. (Post-Crescent Photos) port, according to reports, among the liberal Republicans. Thus if any of the regular Republican vote is subtracted from Wiley's total for Chapple, it is clearly an advantage to the Progressive nominee.

Two Republicans defeated for nomination on the congressional ticket entered the field today as independents supporting the Townsend plan.

Insurance Necessary To Protect Wife, Baby

BY DOROTHY DIX

Dear Miss Dix—We are a young couple with one baby; very happy except for one thing about which we cannot agree and that is his taking out some insurance. He earns a good living, but we have no money saved and he says he can't afford a policy, but I know better. If anything should happen to him, the baby and I would have absolutely nothing as a means of support. When I tell my husband this and urge him to take out some insurance he gets angry and says I just want his money. What shall I do? Shall I just quit nagging him about the insurance and be thankful for his otherwise generous loving ways? MELVA.

Answer:

The memory of your husband's "generous loving ways" wouldn't feed you and the baby very long if he should die, and that is something that is liable to happen to any man at any time, no matter how young and healthy he is. In these days when we not only have to evade sickness, but also dodge automobiles. We literally take our lives in our hands every time we go outside of our own doors.

I cannot think that any man who has intelligence enough to hold down a good job, as your husband does, could not fall to see not only the advantage, but also the necessity of taking out insurance in order to protect his wife and baby. But there are plenty of men who cannot bear for their wives to be more provident and forward-looking than they are, and so perhaps your husband's objection is not the insurance itself, but to your insistence upon it. Evidently he has got his back up over your urging him about it, so drop the subject yourself and set some high-pressure insurance salesman onto the job.

Certainly no man who loves his wife and children can take pleasure in the thought that if he were to die they would be thrown out penniless on the world, with not even a few dollars to stand between them and starvation, while the grief-stricken wife and mother sought some job whereby she might make a living.

Such a thought would add the final torture to the death agony of any husband and father, and many a man has been saved from it by the knowledge that his insurance policy would protect his family from want.

As for your husband accusing you of wanting to get hold of his money when you urge him to take out an insurance policy, that is too unjust and absurd to discuss, but if he has any such apprehensions he can take out a policy on which he can get the benefit himself and which will protect him while he is alive and you and the child if he is dead. There is no better way of saving money nor safer way, for during all the deceptions the good insurance companies stood up better than any other financial institutions.

Dear Miss Dix—I am a young man trying to decide between two careers, one as a lawyer, the other as a musician. My parents are very anxious for me to become a lawyer, but music is part of me and I do not feel that I could ever be happy following anything else. Of course, law has its advantages in that I am sure of a good living after I have graduated. Music has not that assurance, but it would bring me happiness. Should personal happiness be sacrificed for my family?

and I be dissatisfied for the remainder of my life? UNDECIDED.

Answer:

That is a question that no one can decide but yourself. Generally speaking, a man should follow the line of work which he finds most congenial—the thing for which Nature designed him—because in that he not only finds happiness, but makes a success. Very few people ever do well at any labor that is distasteful to them. To achieve anything worthwhile we have to put not only our backs, but our hearts into it and have it fill our thoughts by day and our dreams by night and be the one thing of greatest interest to us.

Nothing is truer than the famous saying of Stevenson that "he who finds work to do, which he follows without any regard for the reward, but for his love of it and the pleasure he has in doing it, is called of God."

But before you make your decision between law and music you must see your parents' point of view and that is, that if you do not go about some money-making occupation, the chances are that they will have to support you for many years—perhaps for always—and you have no right to lay that burden upon them.

It is a pity that before you devote yourself to music you cannot find out whether your talents for it are as great as your love for it. There are so many near-geniuses who waste their whole lives in attempting to do things for which they have no gift, who work and strive to reach heights they have not the ability to attain and die embittered and disappointed.

Try to take a dispassionate inventory of yourself and find out whether you have a God-given genius or not, and whether you have the courage and the self-denial and the patience to follow the long and hard road that the musician must tread before he reaches success. But which decision you make here's wishing you luck.

Very few people ever do well at any labor that is distasteful to them. To achieve anything worthwhile we have to put not only our backs, but our hearts into it and have it fill our thoughts by day and our dreams by night and be the one thing of greatest interest to us.

Nothing is truer than the famous saying of Stevenson that "he who finds work to do, which he follows without any regard for the reward, but for his love of it and the pleasure he has in doing it, is called of God."

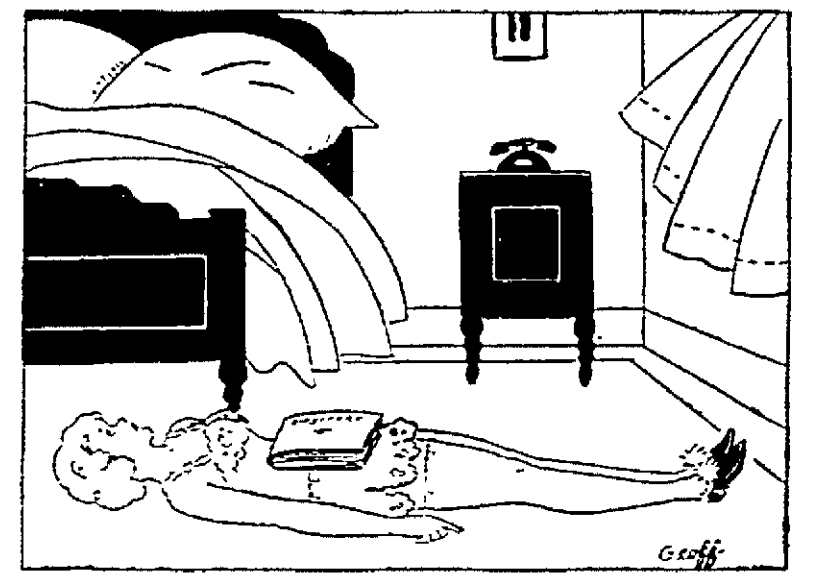

But before you make your decision between law and music you must see your parents' point of view and that is, that if you do not go about some money-making occupation, the chances are that they will have to support you for many years—perhaps for always—and you have no right to lay that burden upon them.

It is a pity that before you devote yourself to music you cannot find out whether your talents for it are as great as your love for it. There are so many near-geniuses who waste their whole lives in attempting to do things for which they have no gift, who work and strive to reach heights they have not the ability to attain and die embittered and disappointed.

Try to take a dispassionate inventory of yourself and find out whether you have a God-given genius or not, and whether you have the courage and the self-denial and the patience to follow the long and hard road that the musician must tread before he reaches success. But which decision you make here's wishing you luck.

Beauty and You by PATRICIA LINDSAY

A heavy book helps firm a flabby abdomen! Raise it up and down with your stomach muscles while you lie flat on the floor.

If you are under thirty, and a movie director promised you an important role providing you would streamline your figure within one month, would you do it? The answer depends upon your character. If you are lazy you would hesitate. If you are ambitious and meticulous you would instantly say "Yes!" Even though you are stage struck the offer would be a tempting one!

Weight control is easier if you have a motive for reducing and a convincing. Why not pretend that in one month you are going to see pictures, or you are marching up to the altar with the man of your dreams? Then follow the simple formula which I have developed called Gale Page for firming flabby muscles. It is easy to do and it is healthy on your stomach.

Weight control is easier if you have a motive for reducing and a convincing. Why not pretend that in one month you are going to see pictures, or you are marching up to the altar with the man of your dreams? Then follow the simple formula which I have developed called Gale Page for firming flabby muscles. It is easy to do and it is healthy on your stomach.

When the movie captured Gale from the radio, the charm director ordered her to reduce ten pounds quickly and take off an inch or two here and there. She immediately cut out starches and fats and watched her diet carefully. Then religiously she did these corrective exercises:

To Firm Forearms and Bust

Press the tips of the fingers and thumbs together, keeping elbows high on line with shoulders. Without separating the fingers and thumbs, press them together and relax. If you are doing the exercise correctly you will feel chest muscles pull and those in upper arms. 30 times morning and night.

To Slim Waistline

Stand with knees rigid and bend from the waist, hands touching the floor. (You know that one!) 25 times morning and night.

Lying flat on the back, pull your abdomen in as flat as possible and then push it out. Try it with the telephone directory if it is heavy on your stomach. 35 times morning and night.

Roll over and over on a hard surface, keeping shoulders pinned to the floor. The back, roll from the waist. Roll five minutes.

Sit up with knees bent. Cross arms beneath knees and rock right and left with feet off floor. Rock for five minutes. Shoes must be off.

My bulletin "Beautifying Limbs and Ankles" should help you. Write me in care of this paper and be sure to send a self-addressed, stamped 3-cent envelope for it.

My Neighbor Says—

In protecting the house by drains when you have them growing outdoors you can bend the branches to the ground and cover them with soil, or the plants can be covered with a barrel which is filled with soil, ash, or dry sand, etc., or you can even dig the plants up and store in a root cellar.

CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST By Dr. George W. Crane Psychologist, Northwestern University

Recently, a college professor dogged just such a question as Henry's and referred his child to his mother because he felt embarrassed and did not know what to say. This indicates adult prudishness.

CASE L-136: Henry B., aged 12, is an intelligent youngster.

"Where did I come from?" he asked his father while they were out rabbit hunting one Saturday afternoon.

"Well," said his father, "I was out hunting one day in the north woods and came upon a pack of wolves."

"I shot at them, they ran away. When I came up to where they had been growling, I found you as a and got the jumbled, hodge-podge typical of children.

His scientific curiosity became changed into a salacious interest. Before he was 19, he had contracted gonorrhea. Now he is cured of that venereal disease but very bitter.

Sex Problems Of Parents

"If my Dad had told me the truth, I wouldn't have got into the trouble I did," he complained. "When I first asked Dad where I came from, I was simply curious in a purely scientific and detached way."

"But his fantastic story aroused my curiosity, for I knew he wasn't telling me the truth. Dr. Crane, why will parents in my case, for he implanted a salacious attitude in me at that very moment?"

One of the greatest sex problems of married people is this matter of instructing their children.

In my office files I have hundreds of letters or case studies of patients just like Henry who are very bitter toward their own parents for telling them falsehoods.

But I have never had anybody criticize his parents for too much scientific sexual information, or for giving it to a child too young.

If you are in doubt, however, tell them too much instead of too little.

Children Are Scientific

Children are purely scientific when they first ask questions about sex. And they remain that way unless prudish parents giggle, or snicker, or stall around and camouflage simple facts with stork tales.

Tell the youngster the truth. Give him the information which he requests. Take him to your physician if necessary, and let him see pictures of both sexes, so he will not feel it necessary to explore the opposite anatomy to satisfy his curiosity.

A child who is hungry for sex facts may lie awake at night thinking about the subject, but a satisfied mind is usually contented. Children are not naturally salacious. They will not dwell on such facts. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for my bulletin Sex Education For Children.

(Copyright, 1938)

(Dr. Crane will give personal attention to questions on psychological problems. Write him in care of this newspaper, enclosing a 3-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply. Letters and readers' names are never published.)

The Hopkins Syndicate, Inc.)

WHERE DID I COME FROM?

And that was the last time Henry ever asked his father any question referring to sex! I suppose the father felt satisfied with himself for his imaginative tale.

But he missed a golden opportunity, and drove his son to the sloppy instructors for his sex knowledge.

Ostrich Parents

Do you remember the fable about ostriches hiding their heads in the sand? Well, countless millions of parents have done the same thing about this subject of scientific sex enlightenment for their children.

Henry came into my office yesterday afternoon. He is now a grown man, married for three years. He is bitter because he has no children and will have to adopt some if he ever expects to have any.

What's the trouble? Well, he knew his father lied to him, so he went elsewhere for his information.

Listen to Radical Youth Instead of Squelching Him

BY ANGELO PATRI

The young man, and not infrequently the young woman, of eighteen or so, are very often thorns in the flesh of their teachers and parents. Youth is always radical, always for rooting out what has been set, for trying out new ways, for removing the ancient landmarks whether they be people, or laws, or what is harder than either customs.

Many of these young people are quiet about their ideas because an ex-reminded of their pristine ignorance, their helplessness, their debt to their elders, and under the weight of the load they sink into silence if not quiescence. But there is always one or two who cannot be silenced. They become the leaders of the silent ones and so evoke the wrath of their elders. These young people are the very ones who must take our places and assume all our responsibilities. We squelch any indication of their desire to take hold and tell them they cannot know what they are talking about because they have no experience. How are they to get experience and so gain the right to be heard if we do not open the doors to them? How can they assume the responsibility for government, public economy, less, until the chairman who was filling in time before the main speaker arrived, asked me what I wanted to say. I said it, plainly, with no reservations, calling it a crook a crook, and for a time the audience listened, stunned to silence. Suddenly I found myself being passed along from hands to hands over the head of the roaring audience until I reached the sidewalk.

"Listen, boy. Nobody wants to hurt you. You're only a kid. Get along out of here and don't ever come back or you may not get off so lucky. You know those men in there don't like to hear themselves called what you called them. Go on home."

I went along home, but in my heart I was singing. I had told them to their faces what I thought, and they had to listen, at least for a time. From then on, I was called a Radical and marked dangerous. I have lived and worked many years in the city I know and love as my home and I have never endangered

Freak Hand Is in Class By Itself

BY ELY CULBERTSON

In my varied bridge career I have seen a good many freaks (both on the table and at the table) but today's hand is almost in a class by itself. If it had been sent in to me I would suspect that it was the work of a vagabond, but the fact is that I saw this hand going the rounds in a recent duplicate game at the Cavendish club in New York.

The bidding at most tables went something like this:

South West North East

1 spade 2 diamonds Pass 5 clubs

2 spades Double Pass Pass

Pass

Some South players got doubled at five spades and one or two actually went to six. But, in any case, the result made South's eyes pop and his hair stand on end! The opening lead was invariably the diamond king and East, taking no chances on the location of the ace, promptly ruffed in. Thereupon, one of South's singleton aces bit the dust. The club king then was returned and when the other singleton ace was slaughtered by West's trump queen, the various Souths wanted to know what the heck was going on. The worst was yet to come, however. West cashed the heart ace and, when East dropped the queen or king, continued with another heart. East won and led another club, and now, to add insult to injury, West's singleton spade king was a sure winner. If declarer trumped low, he would be over-trumped. If he trumped with the ace, the king would remain as a master trump. In short, South's hand, which at the beginning had appeared as the certain winner of trick tricks (eleven if there were no spade loser), actually made one-odd! It is almost inconceivable that a hand such as South's could not make two spades and, indeed, the deal is reminiscent of the famous Duke of Cumberland and Mississippi Heart hands which have become bridge legends. The prime difference is that these famous hands, shrouded in antiquity, must leave us with some doubt as to whether they actually took place. This freak of freaks I witnessed with my own eyes.

Good Taste Today By Emily Post

"THANK YOU"

Dear Mrs. Post: Can you enlighten me as to the correct usage of the words "please" and "thank you" to a waiter or waitress? My husband thinks I am losing their respect, and my own dignity by using these words to some one waiting on us in a restaurant. He thinks it looks as though we were very much impressed by attention that most people take for granted.

Answer: On the contrary, those who are self-conscious about showing appreciation for the service performed for them by others announce to every observer that they themselves have not been used to such service. The true thoroughbred never fails to show courtesy to those who are in a subservient position. The rule is to say "No thank you" when you refuse something. Say nothing when you help yourself to the dish that is proffered, and say "please" when you ask for an extra service, such as, "I would like some bread, please." Say "Thank you" if you happen to drop your napkin and the waiter picks it up, or if he does anything that is apart from his ordinary mechanical service. It is much more important to say "Thank you" to some one who "on duty" in a subordinate position is unable to resent your rudeness than to some one whose position being equal, can resent it.

The Little Vegetable Dishes

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it necessary to remove vegetables from the little side dishes sometimes served in a restaurant? I've been told that to eat directly from them is sure to proclaim—to people who know all the answers—that one is socially ignorant. I'm always glad when the vegetables are served in these extra dishes because, as in the case of something like broiled chicken it gives me more space on my plate to cut off the chicken.

Answer: People whose table manners are meticulous do remove the vegetables from the little dishes and put them on their plate. But I do not consider this an important point in table manners. Meat must of course be lifted from the small plate, and at least one vegetable with it, but whether you choose to eat the remaining ones, especially watery tomatoes or peas (which are inclined to chivvy around on the flat surface of a plate and escape from being rolled on to your fork) can not be considered a very objectionable. In short, if you are served with little individual dishes and choose to eat from them, it would be making a great fuss about nothing should any one criticize you. On the other hand, it is important from the standpoint of correct table setting not to put little dishes on the table of a well-appointed house.

THE CLOUDED MOON By MAX SALTMARSH

The Characters

Hugo Stern, handsome author, living on the French Riviera.

Archie Lumsden, himself, his friend.

Ottile Willis, beautiful American heiress.

Yesterday: The dog Lulu saves Virgoe Willis's life by killing his master's murderer. There is still no sign of Ottile.

Chapter 42 Kidnapped!

We lunched, which is to say that Dunning and I gulped down some mouthfuls of food while Hugo sat, refusing everything. Then Dunning suggested inquiring at the various gas stations on the roads out of town, to hear if they had seen the yellow car pass, and though it was a forlorn hope, any action was better than nothing, so for a couple of hours we scoured the dusty countryside, all to no purpose. The Esterels were still burning bravely, but for the moment such a small event as a conflagration held no interest for me, and finally, just as dusk was falling, we pulled up again on the main square.

Across the crowded promenade pulling up outside the Grand Hotel, was a shabby Renault with dust thick upon it. A stocky, middle-sized man descended from it and started to climb the steps of the hotel, but before he had reached the door, I was across the promenade and gripping him by the shoulder.

"Fleuriot!" I said. "You're a sight for sore eyes!"

He swung round and his face lighted at sight of me. "Tiens!" he answered warmly. There is a small matter of a wager to be settled between us, a wager connected with the word "Amourie." You were right my friend, he added, tapping me in a friendly way on the shoulder, "but I could wish you had been a trifle more explicit, for you see, when I got there, the bird he had flown!"

I stared at him stupidly. "What bird?" I echoed, and he shook his head, gently reproving.

"Do not pretend you did not know. The chasseur, of course! I guessed, naturally, that the word must be a street name in one of the older towns, and I made a lucky decision in trying Antibes first, but it took me some little time to locate the street, for it is now renamed. I discovered it at last, however," he finished triumphantly.

"And more," I found the house itself, the former dwelling of that armorer who gave it its name. So I added to myself certain of the local police, and between us we broke down the door."

"Gosh!" I said wistfully. "I wish I'd been there!"

"And I, too," he assented politely. "With your weight, we had needed three policemen the less—but I dived! The ground floor was empty, but I ascended to the first story, even to that upper room where the old printing press stands." He paused, rodding his head solemnly. There it stood, the whole equipment for that interesting little astrological magazine. We had received inquiries at the Surete about this strange publication, notably from the Dunning Agency of New York."

"I know all about that. I made 'em. I'm Dunning," said the big man hollowly.

"But now I found proof positive that Monsieur Rene Geiss was the author—notes, proof-corrections, unfinished sketches, what you like. You knew this, Monsieur Lumsden!" he added accusingly.

"Help!"

"We guessed it," I corrected him, "but we hadn't a shred of proof. Go on, man, go on!"

"Hiding in an attic under the eaves, I discovered a woman, a Negress, who said she was in charge of the house."

"A woman," I said as he paused, and he flashed me a swift, reproachful look. "You see, you know all, Monsieur Lumsden. This Fatma I questioned, and she told me what I suspected. The chasseur had indeed sheltered there for two days, but that very morning he had left for where do you think? For no less a place than the villa of a certain Monsieur Vladimir Rakovsky in Italy."

"And you believed her?" said Hugo hoarsely.

The other shrugged expressively. "I believed her, yes, for I had no reason to do otherwise, and her story was circumstantial. Also, I had other things to go on, as you shall hear. So to Monsieur Rakovsky I went, but when I arrived, it was to find I had been on what you call a wild-duck hunt. Our friend was not there—he never had been there, and Monsieur Rakovsky was a very indignant man as the mere suggestion that he might have been there! So back to Cannes I came, like the game-dog who has lost the game."

"Too bad!" I said mechanically, for there was something in his manner that told he still had a surprise or two tucked away up his sleeve.

"Look here, Fleuriot, I

gives me more space on my plate to cut off the chicken.

Answer: People whose table manners are meticulous do remove the vegetables from the little dishes and put them on their plate. But I do not consider this an important point in table manners. Meat must of course be lifted from the small plate, and at least one vegetable with it, but whether you choose to eat the remaining ones, especially watery tomatoes or peas (which are inclined to chivvy around on the flat surface of a plate and escape from being rolled on to your fork) can not be considered a very objectionable. On the other hand, it is important from the standpoint of correct table setting not to put little dishes on the table of a well-appointed house.

(Copyright, 1938)

He stopped, with a sigh of sheer weariness. "I am very tired. May I suggest that we adjourn to the lounge?"

We filed after him into the big, empty room and sent a waiter scurrying for refreshment. "And now, messieurs," said Fleuriot quietly. "I think that you have a great deal to tell me, but first let me make my own position clear. I had already heard, as I have told you, of the inquiries made by Monsieur Dunning here and others as to the authorship of Le Grimoire astrologique inquiries which we had not, unfortunately, been able to answer. I knew that a plot against the life of Monsieur Virgoe Willis was suspected, but I tell you frankly that I thought the idea fantastic, and neither we of the Surete nor the local police were unduly disturbed when Monsieur Willis and his niece arrived here. When, however, I saw this note, I realized that the idea of the young lady's abduction was no as fantastic as it might otherwise have appeared, and I realized that Monsieur Rene Geiss was in some way implicated."

"West, Not East"

He paused to sip appreciatively from his glass. "It is not so hard to be wise after the event," he admitted with a wry little smile. "But me, I felt a spiritual indignation at the knowledge that was suddenly heaped upon my plate, for from the fact that the chasseur had been hiding in that house, I deduced that there was a connection between this Willis affair and the murder of Monsieur Venger, and more, that you, Monsieur Lumsden, had been in possession of this information for some time, but had not thought fit to inform me!"

I shifted uneasily. "Let's not go into that now," I suggested. "You'll find I had good enough reasons when the time comes to spill them."

He waved his hand, magnanimously. "I've heard of the regrettable attempt on Monsieur Willis's life and the not so regrettable fate of the assassin. Now I see that the disappearance of Miss Willis is a very serious matter. You believe, do you not, that Monsieur Geiss has abducted her? My friends, you shall tell me all you know, and then we must act, and act quickly."

"This will be news to the lot of you," Hugo said. "Whether Ottile has been abducted or not, one thing is certain. She didn't write this letter! First, it's printed in lipstick."

Fleuriot grinned. "The classic method for ladies in distress who have no pencil."

"Just so," assented Hugo dryly. "But I think you will admit that ladies are not in the habit of carrying an assortment of lipsticks around with them. I happen to know that Miss Willis uses what I believe is known as carmine, whereas this letter, you will note, is printed with an orange stick."

Fleuriot rapped out an oath and sprang to his feet. "You are sure of this, Monsieur Stern?" he demanded sharply.

Hugo swung round on me. "Archie, you saw that Negress the other night—what shade of lipstick would you say she used?"

Fleuriot struck his right sky. "Orange it was!" I admitted and he gave a short, triumphant laugh.

"You see," it was the Negress who wrote this letter, and she wrote it under dictation with the sole object of making us believe that Ottile had been carried ever farther east into Italy." He broke off, studying our intent faces. "Gentlemen," he finished, "there's only one possible explanation for that manœuvre—Ottile never was in Antibes, and if she was to find her, we must look, not east, but west."

"West," Fleuriot struck his forehead. "That includes the whole of France."

"Steady on, man," said I. "That car of Geiss's should be easy to trace, and if Ottile's gone with

Old Gardener Says:

It is very important when planting all bulbs to make an excavation as large at the bottom as at the top, or to run a little sand into the bottom for the bulbs to rest upon. When a sloping hole is made with a dibble of the ordinary type, there is danger of the bulb's becoming lodged halfway down. When this takes place, water will get under them and they will be pretty certain to decay. This matter of having the bulbs at the very bottom of the holes is most important. It may be well to use a little sand in any event, especially if the soil is heavy. There is no advantage, however, in placing the bulbs on their sides, as sometimes advised.

Several weeks ago Admiral Horthy visited Germany, and talked with Mr. Hitler. After that, many persons felt almost sure Hungary would join Germany in case of a European war.

Horthy received his title of "admiral" during the World war, when Austria-Hungary had warships in the Adriatic sea. As a result of the war, Hungary lost her seacoast, but Horthy kept the title.

Hungary is a kingdom without a king. Horthy calls himself "regent," and rules the land. He does not care to share either power or honor with a king, and that is why no Hungarian king has been crowned in these many years.

Hungary's history as a kingdom goes back more than nine centuries. The first king was named Stephen, and was crowned in the year 1000. At just about the same time Leif Ericson and his Norsemen found Vineland, on the North American coast.

Have you ever heard of a woman "king"? That is what Hungary had once upon a time. It happened in this way! A ruler known as Louis the Great died in 1387. He had no sons, but there was a daughter named Mary. The people were not willing to live under a queen, so they settled the problem by crowning the princess and calling her "King Mary".

A five-year-old boy looked at a picture of a Hungarian soldier, and asked "Who is that?" "A soldier of Hungary," I replied. The little fellow was silent for a moment, then asked another question. "Doesn't he have anything to eat?"

The Hungarians have not had to go hungry of late years, but there was a time when they suffered greatly. In Hungary, as well as in Austria, Germany and Russia, there were people who starved to death after the World war.

Among the early settlers in Hungary were invaders known as "Huns." They came from Asia, and their ancestors at one time lived around the Caspian sea. Thousands of Huns under Attila and other leaders invaded Europe 1,500 years ago, and for a time they held a great deal of land in central Europe.

Present-day Hungarians have little, if any, blood of the Huns in their veins. They are properly called "Magyars." The name may be pronounced in two ways, either "mag-yars" or "mod-yers."

YESTERDAY'S RESULTS
West De Pere 7, New London 0.
Kaukauna 20, Clintonville 13.

BY JAMES BOHR
CLINTONVILLE — Last night the Clintonville High school Orange and Black gridders almost upset the dope bucket when they held the Kaukauna High squad 20 to 13. It was the first time in years that the Clints really looked like a ball club. Outweighed nearly 15 pounds to the man, the Orange and Black pony squad put up a strong battle and for a while led the scoring, 13 to 7. Coach Swede Johnson of the Orange and Black, realizing that his squad was as small as they make them, used strategy and completely outwitted the Kaws right at the start.

The Clintonville eleven kicked to the Kaws and lanky Bill Alger returned the ball to the Kaukauna 48-yard line. Then, between Carl Giordana and Carl Kobussen, the Kaws advanced the ball to the Clintonville 18-yard line. On a pass from Giordana to Alger the Kaws put the ball on the 4-yard line. Kobussen took the ball on a spinner and was a half a yard short of a touchdown. On the next play a bad pass from center lost the Kaws 7 yards. Giordana, however, went around and scored on a pass from Giordana to Clayton Watson. The Kaws added the extra point.

Scores on Kickoff
Kaukauna kicked off to Clintonville and on a clever reverse from Billmeyer to Jack Martin ran 78 yards untouched by a single hand for a touchdown. Immediately the stands were in an uproar as this was the first marker the Clints had scored this season and their second touchdown in two years. Jim Billmeyer attempted a placekick for the extra point but the ball was too far to the left.

Clintonville then kicked to the Kaws and Giordana brought the ball back to the 24-yard line. On the next play Giordana lost 8 yards and Watson added a loss of 3 yards putting the ball on their own 23-yard stripe. In a vain effort to get back this yardage Kaukauna attempted a pass but a horde of Clintonville boys were in and blocked it. Luckily Ozzie Goerlinger, captain of the Orange and Black, happened to be under the ball and carried it to the 5-yard line. Then Billmeyer on a clever reverse went off tackle for the touchdown. Jack Martin's placekick was good for the extra point.

The Kaws second touchdown came in the starting minutes of the second quarter when Clintonville fumbled on its own 26 yard line and Leo Rohan recovered. Several passes then were attempted by Kaukauna and after two had failed Giordana finally got one into the waiting hands of Watson who ran to the 2-yard line. Kobussen went around end and crossed the goal line standing up. The attempted kick was blocked making the score 13 to 13.

The score remained tied until the third quarter when the Kaws uncorked another marker. Goerlinger punt ed from deep in his own territory to the 50-yard line where Giordana brought it back to the Clintonville 49-yard line. Giordana again took the ball and was a half a yard short of a first down. On the next play instead of plunging for the needed yard Giordana galloped around end 35 yards for a touchdown. Then to make it a perfect touchdown Giordana kicked the extra point.

THEIR HOMERS BRING YANK VICTORY

Timely home runs by these two Yankees gave the New Yorkers a 6 to 3 victory over the Chicago Cubs in the second game of the world series. ## Yankees Afraid of Lee In Return Engagement

BY EDDIE BRIETZ
NEW YORK —(AP)—Worlds series situation: The baseball mob hit New York yesterday like a hurricane. . . It blew in from the west by plane and special train to be in on the "kill" which every one takes for granted will start at the Yankee Stadium today. . . Two down, the Cubs have their backs to the wall. . . They were a glum lot rolling east on their special. . . Unless the Yankees get too cocky, it looks like they'll be the first team in history to win three world's championships in a row. . . Yanks figure they'll murder Clay Bryant's fast ball today, but some of them fear Bill Lee may be a bit tough in tomorrow's return engagement.

Even the Chicago writers have quit on Cubs. . . Most of them predict the Yanks will do it in four straight. . . We say that which would end the series at the stadium Monday afternoon. . . The Cubs haven't quit.

Marquette Trips Mustangs in Last Quarter of Battle

Hilltoppers Play Alert Football in Upsetting Southern Methodist

CHICAGO —(AP)—Coach Matty Bell and his famed aerial circus from Southern Methodist university had only defeat at the first in three games this season to accompany them to Texas today after their intersectional football clash with Marquette eleven.

The Mustangs threatened to sweep right over the Hilltoppers from Milwaukee as the two teams met last night at Soldier field, but Marquette braced, charged Southern Methodist into the ground thereafter and finally capitalized on a blocked punt in the last period to win 7 to 0.

Leysenaar Scores
Harry Leysenaar scored the touchdown on a short flip from Norm Woods, one of the seven sophomores in the Marquette starting lineup, after Benny Vosberg, another sophomore, had blocked a punt and Bill Burke had carried it to Southern Methodist's 16-yard line.

Southern could gain through running plays, Marquette winding up with a net gain of 15 yards and the Mustangs with 24. While Southern Methodist tried 33 passes and completed 12 for 173 yards, the aerial offense exploded when within scoring range, Marquette tried 12 passes, completing four for 86 yards.

Southern Methodist twice advanced within Marquette's 19 yard line in the first period and Marquette once got to the Mustangs' one yard line in the second, but neither could score. Attempted field goals ended the salutes.

The Trucks have gone through the season without a victory and without scoring a point and are centering all their gridiron hopes on this game. The Marines boast of having one of the best semi-pro clubs in the state and the Trucks have stepped a little out of their class in book-ing this game but are determined that they also have a good squad.

Throughout this season the management of the Trucks has booked extraordinary squads and Wednesday night the Clintonville aggregation will have a taste of college football when Martin Gharriy's Jordan college gridders invade the local diamond. A previous game with Little Chute has been postponed in order to bring Gharriy's famous team to Clintonville. Gharriy is the former high school mentor at Shawano.

Kimberly Eleven Passes to Win Over Pulaski Hi

Scores in First Quarter When LaBlanc Tosses To Vanden Boogaard

KIMBERLY — Kimberly High school gridders won over Pulaski High Friday evening by a score of 6 to 0 at the ball park and thereby kept the lead in conference play. The Papermaker squad was not intact, many of the regulars being on the sidelines with injuries.

Pulaski took the ball on its own 18. It could not dent the Papermaker line and kicked to Kimberly's 40 where the ball was run back to the Pulaski 45. Line bucks off tackle mixed with end around sweeps put the ball on the Poles' eighteen. A pass by La Blanc to Vanden Boogaard was good for a touchdown. The try for placement was wide.

White, right half of the Poles, was a star performer for his team. Several times he broke away for long gains deep into the Papermaker territory. The Papermaker line stiffened when its goal was threatened and Kimberly took the ball on downs. The half ended with the Papermakers leading by a score of 6 to 0.

Coach Ray Hamann strengthened his line with replacements to open the second half as the Papermakers kicked to Pulaski's 20. The Poles fought furiously and outplayed the Papermakers in this quarter but didn't have the necessary punch to score.

Late in the last period the visitors opened with long passes, only to have them intercepted or knocked down. The victory for the Papermakers was the first in three years over Pulaski, the other two games resulting in ties.

Coach Hamann's reserves defeated St. John high school reserves of Little Chute Friday afternoon at the ball park by a score of 7 to 0. The score was made early in the first quarter on a series of plays combined with a pass. The two teams may meet again in a few weeks on the Dutchmen's gridiron.

SUNDAY'S GAMES
New York at Washington.
Detroit at Green Bay.
Chicago at Pittsburgh.
Chicago Bears at Cleveland.

GREEN BAY—Two of the greatest post-graduate football teams in the country—the Green Bay Packers and the Detroit Lions—meet here Sunday in a National Professional league tilt before a near capacity crowd of more than 20,000 at City stadium. The kickoff is scheduled for 2 p. m.

Last season the Packers twice defeated the Lions. The score in the first game was 26 to 6. In the second, at Detroit, the Lions lost by 14 to 13. Those two defeats put the Michigan team out of title running, and the pennant-hungry Packers probably will give the Lions their toughest opposition of the season Sunday. Each team has lost one game this season.

Gutowsky And Shepherd
The Lions, with the least of last season's veterans in tow and line placements in this year's yearlings, are making a strong bid for the championship. Ace Gutowsky and Bill Shepherd are having one of their best seasons at fullback, and are getting valuable relief from Szakash, rookie from Montana.

In Alex Wojciechowicz, all-America center from Fordham university, Detroit has one of the outstanding first year men in the league. He and Bunny Schoemann, Packer freshman center from Marquette, are shaping up as two of the best in the loop. Schoemann probably will be kept out of Sunday's game with an injured knee. Dutch Clark, who is the only Western division coach who also performs in a player's role, always has been "poison" to the Packers and he undoubtedly will see considerable action Sunday.

On the other side he will be faced by Cecil Isbell, freshman back from Marquette, who threatens to steal some of Clark's glory as a great all-around back. Isbell passes, punts and runs the ball, doing a man-size job in each department.

Expect Record Crowd
The game promises to set a Green Bay attendance record. Tickets were being purchased weeks in advance, and only the lower priced seats were available this week.

New Yorkers See Yankees Winning 4 Straight Games

American League's Hitting No Better Than Its Infield Play

BY GAYLE TALBOT
NEW YORK—(AP)—The shell-shocked Chicago Cubs, beaten in the first two games in their home park, limped into Yankee Stadium today to renew the unequal struggle against Joe McCarthy's wonder team in the third battle of the world series.

On the way out of the Bronx abbatoir they passed through a town not visibly excited about the annual blue ribbon classic. The local fan, surfeited with world series contests for the past decade, is fast becoming immune to the clearing of the bands, and the prospect was that the stadium's 70,000 capacity would not be strained.

If the Cubs have been able to win one of those games in their own windy field there might have been an awakening of interest here. But the average New York baseball nut is convinced the Yanks will make it four straight, winding up with their third consecutive world championship Sunday.

Bryant vs. Pearson
Gaby Hartnett, the locals point out, threw his two best bests, Bill Lee and Dizzy Dean, at the slugger American League in Chicago, and Bill and Dizzy got it in the neck. Today Gaby had to gamble on Clay Bryant, a nervous young newcomer to the big series, while his rival, McCarthy, could blast loose with Monte Pearson, a series veteran and a magnificent pitcher.

The Cubs were badly shaken by those home runs Frank Crosetti and Joe DiMaggio hit to beat the courageous Dizzy in the second game, but they still were talking a lot of fight and contending in loud tones the Yanks had been lucky tilts.

Impressed by the way Joe Marty juggled the ball in the second game, Hartnett announced he would keep him in center field for today's game, at least. Marty who replaced Phil Cavarretta, collected three solid hits and drove in all three Chicago runs.

Despite the Crosetti-DiMaggio outburst Thursday, the Chicagoes went into today's contest with a slightly better series batting average than their vaunted rivals—33 to 279. All except two of their 20 blows, however, had been singles.

Yank Fielding Features
The outstanding feature of the series to date, though, has been the Yankee fielding, particularly by Crosetti and Flash Gordon. Between them, they handled 31 chances in the first two games and put together four double plays to spike Chicago rallies. They made several stops that must have been heart-breaking to the Cubs.

The Chicago fielding, on the other hand, has been a big disappointment. Bill Herman's error in the first game enabled the Yankees to lead Lee, 3 to 1, and the tall and lofty tumbling act put on by Bill Jurgens and Senley Hack provided the Yanks with two more runs in the second game.

Today, though, there was a chance Bryant's speed ball would baffle the champs and keep the series alive. Bryant has a world of smoke and misses being a great pitcher only because of fits of nervousness. There wasn't much doubt that Pearson would pitch a low-hit game if he felt ready to start. He has been out for some time with sinus trouble McCarthy's second choice was believed to be his fine young pitcher, Spud Chandler.

St. Mary's, St. Joseph Ready for Tilt Sunday
St. Mary's and St. Joseph gridders will tangle in a benefit game at W. Spencer street field Sunday afternoon. Proceeds of the game will go to Bob Denzel, St. Joseph griddier who broke his collar bone in a recent practice session.

St. Joseph has been going through heavy drills every afternoon in an effort to bring home the boys Sunday. The squad already holds one victory over the Irish this season by the 7 to 0 margin was none too large. St. Mary's has been filling its bag full of tricks and will be seeking revenge against the Dutchmen.

300 Hitters in N. L. Decrease
Lombardi Won Batting Championship With a Mere .342 Average

NEW YORK—(AP)—A sharp decrease in the number of 300 hitters coupled with season-long slumps by seven of the National league's most noted batsmen indicate the dead ball made its presence felt in the senior circuit during the past season.

The uniformly low averages—Ernie Lombardi of Cincinnati topped the semi-official figures made public today with .342, the lowest average to lead the league since Ed Roush's .321 in 1919—are not reflected in the pitchers' records. Only two hurlers, Bill Lee of the Chicago Cubs and Paul Derringer of the Cincinnati Reds, were able to win 20 or more games.

Lombardi, the first catcher to lead the league since Bubbles Hargrave in 1928, fought off the challenge of Johnny Mize, St. Louis first-sacker, during the last month. Mize finished with .337. The others in the first 10 are Frank McCormick, Cincinnati, .327; Arky Vaughan, Pitts-

LYNN HOVLAND
SENIOR, 215 POUNDS
GAINED ON STUNTLINER'S 1938 BOMBER FOOTBALL MACHINE

THE FOOTBALL COACH'S DREAM—A big, fast, rugged lineman who hustles and loves to play the game—is found in Lynn Hovland, 215 pound University of Wisconsin left guard.

Hovland, whose hobby—aside from football—is fishing, developed his tremendous drive playing fullback for three years on the Bloomer high school team in the highly competitive Heart of the North league. The Badger star won three football and two basketball letters at Bloomer High school.

During the summer months, Hovland conditioned himself working on northern Wisconsin highways. Outside of football, he is interested in all sports, but only from a spectator's standpoint. His lowest golf score is 44—nine holes of course—and he has recently developed a cure for a bad slice.

Thick steaks with all the trimmings are Hovland's particular delight, but he would forego these pleasures for a victory over Minnesota this season. He is a senior in the department of physical education, and plans a coaching career upon graduation. He is undecided about a professional football career.

"Red" Dawson's Question Box
By LOWELL (RED) DAWSON

QUESTION: What are the common types of line defense?
Answer: The 7-man line, 6-man line and the 5-man line are the common types of line defense. In setting up a 7-man line defense assignments, the tackles are placed opposite the opposing ends and the three middle men divide the rest, usually evenly spaced between the tackle. Another variation is for the defensive center to take a spot between the middle of the line and the corner of the backfield, the rest of the line accordingly. There are three types of 6-man line: (a) with the line playing tight from end to end (b) with a wide spacing somewhere in the line (c) with wide spacing at two place in the line. In the 5-man line, the tackles shoulder the opposing tackles in the defensive end move in close and the guard takes an equal distance between the tackles.

It Appears That Bill Kiessling Will Get His Ride
Lake Mills — No matter which team wins the world series—the Cubs or Yanks—Lake Mills also wins because it gets a two-man parade.

But the makeup of the parade depends upon who wins the series. If it's the Yanks, Garrett (Gumbo) Keel, Republican candidate for Jefferson County sheriff, will push William Kiessling around in a wheelbarrow. And if it's the Cubs, Keel gets the ride and Kiessling does the pushing.

Hitler and Mussolini in Same Jalopy With Stalin

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER
NEW YORK—Now that the Dies committee has placed our Hitler-trust nazis and naturalized Italian fascists and the consuls of both nations over the same barrel where lately the communist conspirators were getting their licks, there comes from the ranks of the bolos and their "fellow-travelers" no such strident protests as recently decried the committee's red hunt.

The bolos and their "fellow-travelers" called that phase of the investigation of un-American activities a red hunt, and I see no reason to pretend otherwise. Red hunting, like the hunting of nazi and fascist conspirators against the American form of government, is a legitimate duty of that government. The investigation of nazism and fascism has followed the same general line as the investigation of communistic activities and has been, unfortunately, superficial and unskilled. The assignment is one that deserved better talent and more serious intentions on the part of the house of representatives. But as a result of the spade work of the Dies committee congress may now be encouraged to give these dangers the thorough attention that they deserve.

It may be remembered that when the Dies committee was revealing the communist influence in the CIO, the WPA, the Workers' alliance and the League for Peace and Democracy, and tracing the beam of inspiration from Moscow to the American communist group, ridicule, insult and deliberate misrepresentation were the answer from the far left. Now it is the turn of the nazi bund and the Italian conspirators to defend themselves, and it may be noted that, like the communists, they rely on irrelevances rather than disproof.

Resent Investigation of Communistic Activity
If the bolos had resented the investigation of communism on the ground that communism holds an exclusive franchise for un-American activities, having pioneered the field, they would have justified their approval of the current hunt for nazis and fascists. But they took the position that any such interference at all was of itself an un-American activity and thereby assumed a duty to deplore with equal passion the present investigation of the impudent treacheries of their rivals.

The communists have been advertising their Russian product as a twentieth century Americanism, forgetting that a nazi or fascist, having the same moral principles, might with equal truth—which is to say none at all—and probably with more effect, describe his ism as Jefferson and Lincoln in streamline version.

The communists have taken to themselves the word "worker," forgetting, again, that the workers of Italy and Germany are now their enemies and that in this country millions of people who work will indignantly resent the implication that because they detect alien conspiracy and repellant methods in their own country they must be loafers and drones.

Mussolini Was Once Radical Socialist
It is too easily forgotten that Mussolini, the originator of fascism, was himself once a radical socialist, given to scurrilous writing about the Italian government, the church and God almighty, and that fascism, from which Hitler copied nazism, is but a custom job mounted on the old standard Marxian chassis. The paint job and shape of the hood vary in Italy and Germany, compliant with local needs and tastes, but Mussolini and his plagiarists playmate are driving the same jalopy that Joseph Stalin rides in.

The method of penetration in this country is the same on both sides. The communist party, to remove the appearance of foreign control, organized under Americans laws as an American group. The fascists and nazis, never original and always faithful in essential matters to the master model in Moscow, work through anti-American groups of naturalized conspirators under verbal guidance from official emissaries stationed in our midst.

As it was in Eger, Czechoslovakia, so it is in Union City, N. J. today.

WILLIE TURNESA
An easy, comfortable stance features Willie Turnesa's game. His recent victory in the National Amateur championship was no sudden flash to fame or over his head playing. For years he has been in the thick of amateur tournaments with a game so well founded in fundamentals that he was always a dangerous threat. His instruction has always been of the highest order for all of his brothers play golf, one of them, Joe Turnesa, being a former National Open crown wearer. As a result Willie has a smooth stroke, featuring a straight left arm which keeps it in a consistent groove. His right elbow is kept comfortably close to the right side, keeping the swing from coming out of the ball from the outside in. Like most of the successful golfers he uses the overlapping grip, the left hand fairly well over the shaft. The right palm when opened would be facing the line of flight.

Must Get Sleep to Feel Fit; Perigo Aids Slumberers

Expert Mattress Rebuilders Ready to Give Service Economically

If you do not sleep well, you do not feel fit to do your work. Mattresses play an important part in this respect, for they determine how well you rest. If you have not already checked over your own mattresses be sure to do so now because this is the ideal time of year to have your work done, according to the Perigo Mattress company, located at 129 Canal street, Neenah. This firm urges you to take care of your mattresses now in having them gone over to determine just what type of work is necessary to put them in "tip-top" shape.

The Perigo Mattress Company has the only renovating and filling machine in this part of the country, a factor which plays a very

Put Coolerator At Head of List This Christmas

Lutz Makes Sensational Free Ice, Free-Trial Offer to Buyers

A most welcome gift suggestion for you and your family several months before Christmas or at any time of year is that which is being offered by the Lutz Ice Company, namely, the air-conditioned refrigerator, Coolerator. The Lutz firm not only invites you to enjoy modern refrigeration this Christmas in the form of a new Coolerator but also makes the attractive offer of free ice until March 1, 1939 (approximately one ton of ice) in addition to its 10-day free trial arrangement.

Many customers have already taken advantage of this unusual proposition and are agreed that it is a most liberal offer which the Lutz firm is making. Already over 500,000 families throughout the country are enjoying the many extra advantages of the air-conditioned Coolerator. You can join them, too, the Lutz firm reminds, if you wish, and the price you pay is about 100 dollars less than you would expect to pay for such a modern, attractive looking refrigerator.

By trying a model in your home on a free 10-day trial offer, you can experience for yourself how the Coolerator uses ice in a totally different way — how its patented air-conditioning chamber makes food taste better and last longer and how you get plenty of ice cubes in five minutes or less. What is more, these are better cubes because each one is crystal clear, taste free, and hard frozen.

Again, the Lutz Ice Company reminds home owners that the time of year is here once more when cold weather literally is knocking at your door. Daily this firm is supplying quality, clear, coke, and the popular fuel of the future, packaged Pocahontas, to people who wish to make certain of guaranteed heating satisfaction and comfort this winter.

For high quality fuel, pure manufactured ice, or a 10-day free trial of a new Coolerator with free ice until March 1, 1939, upon purchase, you need only "phone 2, the Lutz Ice Company.

RIVERSIDE 'MUMS TYPICAL FALL FLOWERS

Chrysanthemums are at their brightest and loveliest right now, particularly the gorgeous 'mums and other fall flowers at the Riverside Greenhouse. 'Mums add color and beauty to new fall sports outfits at the football games — and clever girls will be wearing Riverside 'mums to Lawrence and Packer games — and they add to the spirit of parties and special occasions. In fact, it's the Riverside every time for flowers. The downtown store in the Conway is convenient for shopping, and the Greenhouses themselves at 1236 N. Pacific street, are open on Sunday. The telephone number of the store is 3012 and the greenhouse number is 5400.

Advances in Sewing Machines Place New Models Far Ahead of Older Types

It is not too early for wise Christmas shoppers to begin giving serious thought to that yearly problem of Christmas gifts. For the average home, that day of the year ought to mean the addition of at least one serviceable household need which will add to the enjoyment and convenience of the home. This you will agree, is the practical and most sensible expenditure of your Xmas savings. A truly acceptable gift which women cannot help but appreciate is a new electric sewing machine available now in a variety of beautiful, attractive cabinets with every conceivable, practical attachment to facilitate and to make possible all types of plain and fancy sewing. Smooth in action, easy to operate, and complete in their work-saving characteristics, the modern sewing machine of today is, of course, all electric removing all traces of wearisome toil from all sewing jobs.

As different as the modern, streamlined automobile is from the old-time horseless carriage, the sewing machines of today boast improvements over old fashion types almost unbelievable in their efficiency. Powered, controlled, and illuminated electrically, it is appropriately designed to take its place harmoniously among the furnishings of any room — always accessible for instant use. In contrast to the old its pleasing appearance makes it necessary to hide it away in an inconspicuous place.

The White Rotary, National Singer, electric sewing machines all receive national recognition, leading the field because of their superiority. These national famous sewing machines are offered by the Wiegand Sewing Machine company, located at 113 N. Morrison street. The Wiegand concern points to its trip to the northern Wisconsin and Michigan.

Twin City Monument Works Ready to Assist In Proper Selection

No time is more fitting, reminds the Twin City Monument Works, 301-307 Main street, Neenah, for the erection of a tribute to departed loved ones as November, often termed as the Memory Month. All Souls Day, November 2; Armistice Day, November 11; Thanksgiving Day, November 24, can be observed in no better way than by erecting a noble memorial tribute to departed loved ones.

Many families gather together upon these occasions to renew family affections and to strengthen the ties which bind them together. Fall memory month of November offers a fine opportunity to do this and many families gather at the cemetery to join again in spirit with beloved ones who sleep there. The memorial in the family plot is, of course, the center of this reunion, representing those absent, bringing somehow their memories
